Givhan Property Endorsed For Location of New Negro School

The question of a location for the proposed new consolidated school for Negroes in this vicinity was reported to the Civic Club Wednesday by Mr. R. A. Reid, chairman of the committee previously appointed for that purpose.

After the report was made concerning several different possible locations, the club voted to give its endorsement to the Givhan property across the creek from the city water plant. In approving this location the resolution of the club instructed the committee to seek to gain the consent and approval of the county and state school authorities for this location.

Under the plan being pursued by the school board it is the aim to locate in the immediate vicinity of Montevallo a Negro school which will serve the children of Montevallo, Almont, Aldrich, Wilton, Dogwood and Boothton. Necessary transportation facilities are proposed to bring the children to this central location.

Funds for construction of the school are immediately available under the present WPA appropriation for schools in Shelby County.

Deep Sea Rodeo Date Is August 8, 9 and 10

Ship ahoy, mates, weigh anchor and hoist the mainsail, everybody's heading for Alabama's Tenth Annual Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, to be held August 8, 9, and 10 off Dauphin Island. The rodeo is attracting sportsmen who follow deep sea fishing from virtually every state in the union.

Governor Bibb Graves will be on hand at the starting bell, and both of Alabama's senators, John H. Bankhead and Lister Hill, have made reservations and have joined others in appealing to President Roosevelt to "look in," or "cast a line" during his sojourn in southern waters.

Albert W. Gill, president of the association, says that this, Alabama's Tenth Annual Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, will be the largest and best yet and expects more than 600 registrants this year. Waters around Dauphin Island abound in tarpon, cavalla, ling, bonita, and mackerel.

Dauphin Island, the scene of this year's activity, is 13 miles off the mainland of Alabama. It is the site of old Fort Gaines. Barracks will be available for those who do not wish to sleep on their boats.

STATE TAX COMMISSION RECIPROCAL AGREEMENTS

The officials of the State Tax Commission have recently made reciprocal agreements relating to motor vehicle operation with officials of the States of Georgia, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Arkansas. These agreements permit farmers, truckers, foresters, miners and producers of other products to haul their own commodities on their own motor vehicle into the other states without having to buy license plates of the other states, or pay any additional taxes of any kind.

It is necessary, however, that any one hauling his own products into Arkansas, Mississippi, or Tennessee, first secure a permit. If going into Arkansas, from the Motor Vehicle Division, Department of Revenues, Little Rock, Arkansas; if going into Tennessee, from the Department of Finance and Taxation, Mileage Unit, Memorial Building, Nashville, Tennessee; if going into Mississippi, from the Auditor of Public Accounts, Automobile Department, Jackson, Mississippi.

The permit is to be pasted on the windshield of the motor vehicle and to remain there until the end of the fiscal year, only one permit being necessary for the whole year.

Miss Brownfield Is At Boston University

Boston, Mass., July 30—Among the 1,650 students registered from 29 states and 5 foreign countries in the 24th annual Boston University Summer Session here is Miss Lelah Brownfield, of Montevallo.

From a total of 141 students in the first summer session, the annual registration totals have climbed each year until a new high of 1,578 was reached last summer. This year's total of 1,650 men and women marks the second consecutive year that all-time high enrollment has been set and the fifth consecutive year having an increase. The enrollment numbers two-thirds women and one-third men. School teachers top all other professions and trades.

The J. M. Stephens home was hit by lightning last Sunday. No serious damage was done. The members of the family were severely frightened.

Study Club Will Sponsor Paving

Committee Will Furnish Information To All Property Owners Who are Interested

The Montevallo Study Club has agreed to sponsor a project for paving some residential streets in the town under the present available plan for federal aid. The club will endeavor to interest property owners in the plan so that as much as five blocks may be included in the project.

The Civic Committee of the club is composed of Mrs. E. P. Hood, chairman; Mrs. F. P. Givhan, and Mrs. L. C. Parnell.

It is stated that the committee already has consent of property owners for paving three blocks, and they are anxious to discuss the matter with other prospects so the minimum requirement of five blocks can be secured.

Any property owner who might be interested is invited to call Mrs. Hood, whereupon she, with her committee, will be glad to furnish all information possible. The cost to the property owners will be about $1.10 per front foot.

"We feel that there are several blocks of streets in Montevallo that should be paved," said Mrs. Hood, speaking for her committee of the Study Club. "Under the proposed plan, where the cost is in the neighborhood of $1.10 per foot for abutting property, we believe there is afforded an unusual opportunity to secure the permanent advantages of paving. It is very likely if we fail to take this opportunity, those streets which need paving so much will remain in the mud and dust for a long time before another such opportunity comes along."

HEALTH DEPARTMENT WILL HOLD TYPHOID CLINICS

The Shelby County Health Department announces that typhoid clinics will be held as follows:

Monday, August 8: Calera School at 2 p.m.; Fourmile School at 4 p.m. Friday, August 12: Helena School at 9 a.m.; Fallston Commissary at 1 a.m.; Pelham Commissary at 2 p.m.; Keystone Commissary at 3:30 p.m.

At these clinics immunizations will be given against typhoid, diphtheria and smallpox.

DR. W. D. JACKSON OPENING DENTAL OFFICE HERE

Dr. W. D. Jackson, formerly of Decatur, is coming to Montevallo to engage in the practice of his profession. He has purchased the equipment of the late Dr. Floyd W. Lacey and will occupy the former office of Dr. Lacey in the Givhan Building.

Wednesday morning, when seen by the Times reporter, Dr. Jackson was busy installing his fixtures and said he would be ready for business before the end of this week.

New Fire Truck To Be Tried Out

Montevallo Citizens will See Modern Equipment Demonstrated Next Monday

Montevallo citizens will have an opportunity next Monday to see a new, modern, up-to-date, and efficient fire truck in operation. Mr. Hill and Mr. Duncan, representing the Cruise-Crawford Manufacturing Company, of Birmingham, will bring to Montevallo a new truck which has been installed at Brighton.

Together with these gentlemen, fire chief Hill, of Bessemer, will be here to make demonstrations in the use of this new equipment in fighting fires.

Councilman Stanley Mahan, fire chief of Montevallo, has called the local fire department to be on hand to take part in the demonstration with the new truck.

The Town Council of Montevallo requests the citizens of Montevallo to witness the demonstrations that will be made with this new equipment next Monday. The visitors will be here shortly before noon, and will be ready for the show soon after arrival.

This outfit is one of the most effective fire-fighting devices in existence today. It will be interesting for us to witness its efficiency.

When we see it in operation, we will wish Montevallo had one like it. And we may have it soon. Hope so.

Water Mill Making Rock-Ground Meal

Mr. H. I. E. Dyer runs the water mill in Montevallo. The wheels are turned by the waters of Shoal Creek as they pass through our town on the way to Wilton, Six Mile, Cahaba, the Alabama River, Mobile Bay, the Gulf of Mexico, and perhaps other points south.

The Montevallo mill grinds corn into good old fashioned home-made meal. Mr. Dyer offers this meal for sale to Montevallo people through Montevallo merchants. Yet, he says, lots of water ground meal is brought here from other places and sold in our stores.

Here, perhaps, is another instance where we might apply the practice of trade at home, and help keep the wheels of the Montevallo Water Mill turning, rather than standing idle much of the time.

BOOTLEGGING DROP IN STATE REPORTED BY TAX UNIT HEAD

Sharp decreases in illegal distilling practices in Alabama have been noted for the periods of June and July, according to Joe Rollins, head of the Birmingham Alcohol Tax Unit.

Work on the tax unit is "slowly but surely starving the bootlegger to death," he said.

Figures for the June and July periods, 1937, showed 178 stills seized, 251 arrests, 54 automobiles confiscated and 48,550 gallons of mash seized.

For the same period this year Rollins reported 9 stills seized, 146 arrests, 35 automobiles confiscated and 26,550 gallons of mash seized.

Homemakers Elect New State Officers

Miss Annie Pearl Honeycutt, Clanton F. H. A. Chapter, is Named President

At the conclusion of the fourth annual session here at Alabama College, girls of the Alabama Future Homemakers Association named Miss Annie Pearl Honeycutt, of the Clanton Chapter, to head the organization for 1938-39.

Other officers include Claire Connerly, Jackson, vice president; Alice Parker, Lincoln, secretary; Alabelle Norman, Hope Hull, treasurer; Carolyn Shaw, Aliceville, parliamentarian, and Muriel Lowery, Jemison, historian.

Presided over by Clara Bell Alexander, Pell City, this year's president, the 100 girls in attendance for two days heard inspirational talks, transacted business and enjoyed recreational programs.

In the feature discussion of Saturday morning, Miss Honeycutt and Bradley Twitty, of the Cherokee Future Farmers of America Chapter, talked on "Cooperation in Home Life of Today."

Miss Honeycutt declared that among other things, the woman must respect the family budget, keep up reasonable cheerfulness, and take pride in the family honor.

Accepting the man's chief obligation as that of providing a sound family economy, Twitty pointed out the pressing need for better housing, conservation and farm methods over the South.

"I have enough faith in the future of agriculture in Alabama," he said, "to have made my plans already to stay on the farm. Farm living is steadily getting better, and it seems to me that the Future Homemakers have a wonderful opportunity to make a big contribution to the improvement."

Miss Lulu Palmer, consultant in family life education at Alabama College, was the first speaker Saturday. In her discussion of "The Individual's Place in Building a Home," she listed the following as characteristics of the successful homemaker: integrity, ordliness, affection, cheerfulness, growth and faith.

Final speaker of the morning session, Dr. J. R. Hobdy, state director of vocational education, praised the Future Homemakers Association as one giving promise of great value to the American home.

Those speaking at the session Friday included President A. F. Harman, and Dean T. H. Napier, Alabama College, and Miss Katherine Forney, state supervisor of home economics education.

Examinations for the state degree were held Friday, and this was followed by a tea in the Home Management House. After supper the delegates hiked to the Camp House.

At the initiation service Saturday, Mrs. A. H. Collins, wife of the state superintendent of education, was made an honorary member.

The churches of Montevallo will have union services on Sunday evenings during August. The service next Sunday evening will be at the Methodist Church.

How many more dog days are there, anyway?

Rain, rain, go away,
Come again some other day,
Our farmers want to hay.

Stop! Wait a minute! Don't send that dollar out of Montevallo! Look and see if you can't buy what you need here and keep the money at home.

Now is the opportune time to secure some more paved streets in Montevallo. If we pass this chance, we will no doubt stay in the mud and dust for a long time.

The shrubbery planted last spring around Palmer Hall is looking good. The bushes absorb a lot of the spacious blank along the south side of the building.

This Is News!

We hear there are two or three vacant residences in Montevallo. It is the first time we have known of such a condition in the three years we have been here.

Also, there are some new homes under construction. Looks like we may be slowly overcoming the house shortage which was very acute a few years ago.

Dollars With Wings

This county was "sowed down" last week with a new issue of Sears and Roebuck catalogs. In the Calera postoffice, where they came for distribution, they were piled so high that Postmaster R. E. Bowdon could not see over them—and you will admit that was a high pile.

The mail order houses keep everlasting after business, and they get it—a fact which seriously concerns local merchants and citizens generally, all of whom need our dollars to stay at home instead of taking wings and flying to foreign fields.

The Other Side of the Picture

While we think about the question of supporting home business and home industry, and keeping our money at home, let us not forget to look at both sides of the picture.

We people in business who insist on the people at home trading with us must remember that we are, first of all, under obligation to offer the public the kind of merchandise and the kind of service they want, at a satisfactory price.

Most anybody is primarily for the home town, and willing to support the home town, but also, most everybody feels a personal pride in knowing what they want, and in having the privilege of being able to go where they can get it.

When the average person makes up his mind he wants a certain thing, he is going to get it, and his privilege to do so will lead him to other places, if he can't find it in the home town.

We might as well remember that, and first make ourselves ready to serve our people fully and satisfactorily before we go very far in seeking to herd up all the dollars that are being spent elsewhere by our neighbors.

The Three "Musts" of Traffic Safety

Better law enforcement, plus better driver education, plus better highways, constitute the key to automobile accident prevention, according to the experts. And none of the three ingredients can be left out of this "safety stew" if we are to get results.

Better law enforcement doesn't mean tough policemen, and traffic judges who decree the maximum punishment on every possible occasion. It does mean modernized traffic codes, "fixless" tickets, a higher calibre of motor patrolmen in many instances, and judges and prosecutors who do their duty without fear or favor. It means a type of law enforcement whose principal purpose is not punishment, but accident prevention. Often some sound advice will do more to curb a reckless or thoughtless driver than a fine.

Better driver education requires the scientific approach. Drivers must be appealed to on every possible occasion, by the written and spoken word. Messages must be made simple, vivid and memorable. The great majority of drivers involved in accidents can be made into safe car operators. In the case of the small percentage which is congenitally reckless, revocation of licenses seems to be the only cure.

Better highway construction is where the engineer comes in. When you build a road on which it is impossible to have a major accident, you've solved the traffic problem so far as that road is concerned. And modern planning makes it possible to come remarkably close to that ideal, through the use of under and over passes, traffic lane separation, and approaches which do not permit the cars traveling in opposite directions to meet. The highway of the future will not only be faster than that of today, but immeasurably safer.

Accident prevention involves the long pull. It can't be achieved overnight. But properly directed and continuous campaigns, over a period of time, will turn the trick.

Women Sponsor Paving

The Study Club of Montevallo has determined to sponsor a paving project, whereby they hope, and expect to secure the consent of property owners for the paving of at least five blocks of streets. This work will come under the present available plan for federal aid, which will cost the property owners about $1.10 a front foot.

The matter is in charge of the civic committee of the Study Club, composed of Mrs. E. P. Hood, Mrs. F. P. Givhan, and Mrs. L. C. Parnell. This committee will be glad to confer with any property owner who is interested, and to furnish such information as will be helpful.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

"The question has been asked: What are the advantages of newspaper advertising by contrast with all other forms of advertising?

"In setting out these advantages, newspaper publishers do not discount supplementary forms of publicity. But the area of and its distribution of population are such that newspaper advertising has been and must be the basis of all the pointedly successful advertising campaigns. . . .

"The newspaper is the medium of the moment—the axis of opportunity; flexible, powerful and instantaneous in its ability to create sales."—Troy Messenger.

Economic Highlights

Will business get better or worse? Will change take place rapidly or slowly? Which lines of industry seem to face the most favorable prospects, and which the most unfavorable? In an attempt to answer such oft-asked questions as these, the Associated Press recently queried more than a score of "leading economists." The resulting symposium casts an interesting and fairly optimistic light on the current situation.

Asked if there will be general recovery during the balance of the year, 11 economists said "definitely yes." Nine said "probably yes." Only one took the negative view, and two had no opinion to offer.

Asked as to the duration of the recovery cycle, eight economists said it would last until Christmas at least; four expected it to go through next spring. Seven believed it would continue beyond spring, and three had no opinion.

Sixteen of the men replying regarded government spending as an aid to recovery, from the standpoint of the short view. Two believed it hindered recovery, two more thought of little importance, and three were undecided.

The leading factors favoring recovery reported include: better retail trade; higher commodity prices; reduction of inventories, and the improved trend in the stock market.

Principal factors unfavorable to recovery mentioned by the economists include taxation, government interference with business, the low condition of the heavy industries, and price rigidity. Curiously enough, both wage cutting and resistance to wage cutting were also mentioned as unfavorable factors by various of the experts.

As to the pace of the recovery, the bulk of the economists took the view that it would be slow and steady. Only one said he anticipated a boom. And practically all of them predicted the briskest pick-up in the consumer goods industries, and expressed doubts as to the experience of the capital goods industries.

So much for the future. Events of the present seem to justify the economists' careful predictions. The general improvement in business sentiment continues to be reflected in the stock market. The week ending July 23 saw a number of leading issues reach their highest points in 10 months or longer. And turnover was at a fairly good level.

A few lines are showing unusual strength—steel, for instance, recently jumped operations from 22 to 33 per cent of capacity. Residential building contracts continue to slowly improve. Buying in consumers' goods fields rises.

On the debit side is a poor outlook for profits in many industries—and continued slackness in the extremely important automobile industry. It is expected that car production will rise soon, but not to anywhere near last year's levels.

Business Week estimates that this year's farm income will be good—$7,400,000,000, which is 10 per cent under 1937, and 3 per cent under 1936.

Letters To The Editor

(This column is open to the public for discussions or views on subjects pertinent to the interests of our readers in general. No letters of a controversial nature will be published under any circumstances.)

Walter McConaughy Writes of Destructive Flood in Kobe, Japan

Mr. W. P. McConaughy has released to The Montevallo Times a letter from his son, Mr. Walter McConaughy, of the United States Consular Service, at Kobe, Japan, in which a most interesting description is given of a recent devastating flood which brought terrible destruction to that city.

Walter McConaughy is a native son of Montevallo. His wife is the former Miss Dorothy Davis, of Andalusia, who is an honor graduate of Alabama College. Their many friends throughout Alabama will read with interest their vivid description of this harrowing experience. Especially will they be glad to know that Walter and Dorothy came through the ordeal without serious injury.

The Letter

The flood of July 5th climaxed four days of hard incessant rain, and six weeks of intermittent downpours, the like of which the oldest resident here has never seen. When the saturation point was reached, further cloud-bursts sent such avalanches of water down from the hills on to the narrow strip that comprises Kobe, that they could only be likened to a Johnstown flood.

Our house is situated near the foot of a gap from the mountain. About ten a.m. (I had managed to get to the office at nine, never dreaming that disaster was impending) a mighty torrent came down our alley sweeping everything before it. Dorothy had no warning and was trapped in the house. She climbed to the roof, attempting to escape that way. While she was up there the house in front of ours went down, killing the wife. Dorothy then retreated into our house and saw the fence, garden entrance and front part of our house (including the servants' quarters) swept away. Nothing could live out front, so she took the only alternative of wading through the stream that filled our kitchen; breaking in the glass door on the north side of our house and climbing over the mass of debris that blocked it. This great mass of debris formed a sort of improvised dam that saved our house from destruction. She was able to fight her way along it for a short distance, then down to the paved street below us. The servants were behind her. For an hour Dorothy stood in a swirling river on the paved street, with the heavens pouring on her, expecting every moment to be struck by one of the uprooted trees or large timbers rushing by. Again she was spared by the grace of God, and was taken to the German school, where several Germans befriended her, giving her dry clothes and hot coffee. This was a strong new concrete building and was safe.

In the meanwhile, I was working like a madman at the Consulate trying to save the records in the basement from mounting water. I had no inkling that Dorothy's life was in jeopardy. Downtown we simply had three feet and more of standing water, and did not suspect that such destructive streams were tearing through the residential section on the heights. About 11:30 I began to feel some concern and telephoned the house. When there was no answer I became alarmed and was about to try getting up the hill when I received a call from the German school that Dorothy was safe. They told me nothing of her narrow escape or of what had happened to our house. When the water began to get away about five I made my way home over obstacles in about 1½ hours (it is normally a 15-minute walk). I found a scene of indescribable destruction; house sights washed clean, and other houses reduced to matchwood; 20-foot stone and concrete retaining walls in the bottom of paved walks that had been converted into canyons 20 feet deep; broad streets completely unidentifiable; boulders weighing over a ton tossed about like pebbles; principal streets converted into beds for roaring rivers; houses, stores, stations, everything inundated or deep in mud and slime; autos and street cars stopped and smashed by the impact of floating debris or half buried in water and mud; telephone and light poles down; water and gas mains burst; and every normal facility paralyzed.

Dorothy was worried about me through false reports she had received as to the condition of the downtown section. She was going from house to house looking for me while I pursued her, a house or two behind. We found each other about 6:45 and took stock of our situation. Our house was the only one standing in the immediate neighborhood, and was very hard to get to and could be entered only through the dining room; everything on the ground floor was damaged by water and mud; the servants had lost practically everything they had; we had no water, light, gas for cooking, or telephone; the house was unsafe. It didn't take us long to decide to get out as soon as we could. We had to spend two uncomfortable nights there. Labor of course became practically unobtainable, and sky-high, and with no water there was little clearance work we could do. We managed to get enough to eat, partly through the kind help of our neighbor across the street, Bob Smith, the main part of whose house was left intact. On the 7th Mr. Martin Scott, U. S. Treasury, attaché here, who is now in a summer beach house at Tarumi, invited us to use his town house, which is about two blocks from us, and is unharmed. We accepted at once, and spent the night of the 7th there. There is still no water, and no prospect of any, but we are getting along satisfactorily, with Dorothy doing most of the cooking in addition to working like a Trojan at our old house. On the 8th we definitely decided to abandon our house. So we are moving to the fine house recently vacated by the Winthrop Scotts—the outgoing consul here. This place too, was unharmed by the flood and is quite safe. We have been able to hire five coolies—at high prices—who are moving the furniture on their backs, a distance of about 3½ blocks. We hope to finish the moving today. Dorothy has worked heroically supervising the entire moving operation. Affeld and I are under severe pressure at the office trying to do the work of the six men normally stationed here, and cope with the problems raised by the disaster, too. I do what I can at the house when I can break away from the office. We are both holding up very well, being blessed with more than our share of health and strength.

Naturally I am hard hit financially. The damage to our effects I can't estimate yet. I will have to help out our poor servants who lost everything. The moving will cost considerable. I must pay quite a bit for past improvements made in the house I am taking (according to the peculiar Japanese system) while losing probably all the many hundreds of yen I have put into improvements in the house I am vacating.

Wonderful efficiency is being shown by the local officials, and the populace in general, who are facing their calamity with true Oriental stoicism. Much has already been done to clear the city, but it will be a bad summer at best. Months will be required to clear the city, much less start any rebuilding. Many of the roads are completely washed away or so badly undermined that a new bed will have to be laid. Some of the streets have streams permanently diverted down them. Most of these cases are the result of creeks returning to their old beds which had been drained or greatly narrowed by the city because of the need for land here.

Over 900 are known dead, with more bodies being uncovered as excavation of silt continues. Houses destroyed run into the hundreds of thousands. The silt blanketing the city—in some places over 15 feet deep—is said to run into millions of tons. The lack of a water supply is the biggest source of anxiety now. Dorothy and I are being inoculated again for typhoid.

The consulate is still surrounded by water. You would be surprised at the distinguished visitors who call here barefoot. Our staff has carried on nobly, many of them getting here to work every day, traversing miles of devastated territory on foot and fording dangerous streams.

I feel sure that the rains are over. The sunshine is brilliant today. We are excited over the allure of our new house, and Dorothy is full of plans to make it attractive. There is no need to feel sorry for us—rather I know you will join with us in devout thanks-giving.

By the time you get this letter we will be settled in our new house and the flood will be mostly an unforgettable page in the past.—Walter.

Explorer, Set Upon By Savages, Uses Light Ray Instead of Bullets

Henry Clay Gipson, New York photographer and writer exploring in the wilds of Peru, saved his life by pressing a switch instead of pulling a trigger when two savages tried to knife him in a hut near the headwaters of the Amazon.

Gipson, gathering some new material on Peruvian Indian life, was making his way through the sacred valley of the Incas. He was bound for Macchu Pichu, the ancient Inca city which has been called "the most interesting native ruin in the Americas."

Coming upon a crude shelter soon after dark, he decided to camp. He had a light supper from his knapsack, then threw himself on the floor of the abandoned hut, clothes on and pistol by his side.

"I was dog-tired," Gipson said, "but I slept lightly—in that country you have to be on guard even when you are asleep. Hours later I began to realize that something was astir. Believe me, I woke up completely then. In the shadows I could dimly see two Indians advancing on hands and knees toward me."

"I grabbed my pistol, but naturally I didn't want to shoot unless I was forced to. When I leaped up, they stopped, apparently undecided what to do. I yelled that I was armed—that if they didn't get out I'd let them have it. They didn't understand English, I didn't speak Indian, and in the darkness they couldn't see my black pistol, though the moonlight revealed their knives."

"One of them said something to the other, and they moved toward me. Then I picked up my flashlight and played its beam on my gun.

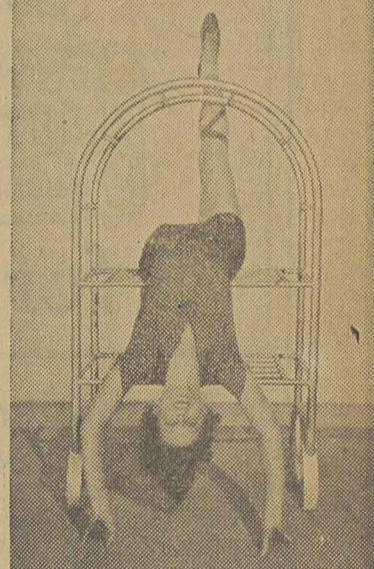

When they saw the weapon, they let out a yell and ran. Had it not been for the flashlight, in the next instant there would have been a dead Indian or a dead photographer in that hut. But the flashlight worked one hundred per cent—an explorer takes no chances on batteries that are not fresh when he loads up—and as a result a good story for the newspaper was lost."

Gipson has traveled over 50,000 miles through the continent.

His book, "Look at Latin America," contains some of his most recent photographs and studies.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Carter and little Juanita Holder visited in Piper Tuesday.

Coming to The Strand Thursday

Mickey Rooney and Freddie Bartholomew in "Lord Jeff"

The drama of the British Merchant Marine serves to team Freddie Bartholomew and Mickey Rooney in a gripping story in "Lord Jeff," story of England's future sailors, which comes to the Strand Thursday and Friday.

Its locale, the Russell-Cotes Nautical School, one of the famous English institutions grouped in the Barnardo Homes where orphans are trained for the future, the new picture depicts Freddie as a youngster, the tool of crooks, represented as a scion of nobility, who is taken from his dishonest guardians and trained at the school.

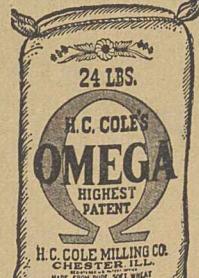

Mickey Rooney plays the student petty officer who is first Freddie's nemesis, later his friend, as the spoiled boy finds loyalty and regeneration. Intimate details of the training of the boys, their athletic meets, mast-climbing contests, annual boat race, and their final graduation to places aboard the Queen Mary, form a background against which a story of sacrifice and hate, loyalty and regeneration is played. Both youngsters are excellent in their roles.

Timely Discussions of Interest To Farmer Folk

FARMERS URGED TO SEND OATS EARLY

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama farmers who have seed oats for sale and plan to send them to the State Department of Agriculture to be tested should do so early, advises L. N. Allen, seed analyst of the State Department of Agriculture at Montgomery.

Mr. Allen states that it will be practically impossible for his department to handle samples with any speed after September 15. Samples coming in after that time usually interfere with control work, and as a result, are shunted aside until inspection samples have been handled.

The State Department offers this service free of charge to all farmers. The samples should consist of about two pounds of large seed and one pound of small seed and should be as nearly representative of the entire lot as possible. The sender should also state the variety and kind and how much he has on hand, together with his name and address.

Mr. J. O. Phillips and grandson, Howard, of Selma, spent last weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Denison.

AAA SOIL PRACTICES NEEDED BY DAIRYMEN

Auburn, Ala.—Six soil-building practices which Alabama dairy farmers need and for which they can receive pay have been listed by F. W. Burns, livestock specialist of the Alabama Extension Service. Too many dairy farmers, he says, have the idea that the soil-building practices and the payments the AAA will make for these practices are for the cotton and general farmer and have no connection with dairying.

Mr. Burns is advising dairymen to take advantage of the opportunity to build a good permanent pasture or to build up the yielding capacity of the land by planting winter legumes. Although there are many practices which the Alabama farmer may receive payment for putting into operation, Mr. Burns says he believes that six are the most needed by the Alabama dairymen.

He lists the following practices which are counted as one unit in the soil-building allowance for the farm: (1) A full seeding of permanent pasture mixtures on one-half acre of pasture land; (2) the application of 1500 pounds of ground limestone to one acre of pasture;

ADJUSTMENT PAYMENTS TO BE STARTED SOON

Auburn, Ala.—Distribution of cotton price adjustment payments on cotton produced in 1937 will be started soon as a sufficient number of farm operators make application on the prescribed form, certifying they have not knowingly planted or permitted to be planted cotton in excess of the 1938 cotton acreage allotment, and such applications can be approved and certified for payment, announces A. W. Jones, administrative officer of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in Alabama.

"The issuance of these adjustment payments probably will not get underway before late August with most of the payments going out in September, October and November," Mr. Jones says, adding that every effort will be made to handle the distribution as promptly as possible.

The maximum rate of payment on any eligible cotton is three cents a pound. All eligible cotton sold prior to September 10, 1937, will carry a rate representing the difference between 12 cents and the average of the 10 spot cotton markets on the day it was sold. All cotton eligible for payment and not sold prior to September 10 (the day that cotton first fell below nine cents a pound during the 1937-38 marketing season) will be considered as sold on a date when the 10 spot market price was less than nine cents, and producers will receive three cents per pound on such cotton.

Under the ruling, cotton does not have to be sold to entitle a producer to payment. Cotton held by a producer on the farm or in warehouses, whether or not under the CCC loans, will be on the same basis as cotton sold during the marketing season.

In comparing taxes in the United States with taxes in England, Harold M. Grove, professor of public finance at the University of Wisconsin, says the average fees on cars in England are over $53.00 while in this country they are $8.50. The taxes on gasoline in the country are 15.6 cents per gallon, while the average in this country is 5.5 cents.

(3) the application of 500 pounds basic slag or 300 pounds of superphosphate on one acre of pasture; (4) construction of 200 linear feet of terraces with proper outlets; (5) the use of 10 pounds of good adapted seed in reseeding depleted pastures; and (6) seeding of biennial perennial or winter legumes on one acre of crop land.

Each of these units will entitle the farmer to payments of $1.50, according to Mr. Burns.

HOGS SHOULD GO ON PEANUTS IN AUGUST

Auburn, Ala.—The fattening hogs should be moved from Ootootan soybeans to Spanish peanuts in August, advises F. W. Burns, animal husbandman, Alabama Extension Service. Hogs that weigh over 180 pounds should be marketed as early as possible in order to take advantage of the high price prevailing in September.

As soon as the Spanish peanuts are cleaned out, the remainder of the fattening hogs should be moved to runner peanuts and finished there. It will pay to use temporary fences so the hogs may be kept on fresh peanuts every two weeks. This eliminates what farmers call "standing still" of hogs.

In general, there should be from 800 to 1200 pounds of hogs per acre of solid runner peanuts. It will also pay to graze the peanuts nearest water in September, October, and November and then haul water to the hogs in December and January while grazing peanuts that are over one-fourth mile from water. A mineral mixture of equal parts of charcoal, slaked lime and salt should be kept before the fattening hogs at all times, according to Mr. Burns.

One acre of oats should be planted for each sow in October and sows and fall pigs should be turned on those oats in November. This green feed, together with the peanuts which remain in the field after the fattening hogs have been moved, will usually provide sufficient feed for the sows and fall pigs.

STATE SHIPS MORE POTATOES AND PEACHES

Auburn, Ala.—New records in carlot shipments of Irish Potatoes and peaches have been made this year by Alabama, announces the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Up through July 16 a total of 6,804 cars of potatoes had gone out of the state and 13 carloads of peaches had been shipped by the above date.

In potato shipments the state is surpassed only by California, Florida, Virginia, and North Carolina. Last year Alabama shipped 5,617 carloads of potatoes all season and shipped only five cars of peaches, according to the Bureau's records.

A quart of milk for each child and a pint of milk for each adult together with a sufficient supply for making butter, should be provided on every Alabama farm. Usually two good milk cows, one freshening in the fall and the other in the spring will be required to supply the family needs.

TO AVOID RUSTED IRON

To keep an electric iron from rusting when not in use, rub the surface over with paraffin (warm the iron so that the paraffin distributes thinly and evenly) and wrap with paper.

Alabama farm people will make up a farm forum discussion which will be broadcast from Auburn over the entire network of the Columbia Broadcasting System on Sunday, August 7, at 2 p.m., according to P. O. Davis, director of the state agricultural extension service, who invites Alabamians to listen to the program "The Farmer Takes the Mike."

Alabama farmers need to grow $20,000,000 worth of vegetables more than they are now producing, states W. A. Ruffin, state extension horticulturist. To do this it is necessary for the garden to receive more attention than any other area on the farm. Some of the things that can be put in the fall garden during August are lima beans, bush snap beans, English peas, beets, carrots, Irish potatoes, squash, turnips, and corn.

By comparative tests—fresh vegetables and meats cooked the electric way (with little water) do retain more of their natural, excellent flavor. You'll find that to be true when you start cooking electrically. A modern, beautiful, fast-cooking, silent electric range can be yours at a price and terms well within the reach of a modest income. MILK ...

THE FAMILY DRINK

If you produce something to sell only for your own personal benefit, you would be better employed doing something else. But if you produce something that will do a specific thing and do it well, then you are helping people.

Our main purpose, our constant intention, our main ambition, is to produce a milk that will be more useful to more people. That is why there is not another town the size of Montevallo that receives daily the high quality of dairy products that are delivered by our trucks.

Hangar Remodeled Will Be Field House

The Field House, a new and beautiful building on the Alabama College campus, is now under construction. It is being made out of the Hangar, with such additions, alterations, etc., as to make it a very imposing and useful structure.

The building faces to the West. The new archery field is immediately in front. Other parts of the field will be used for tennis, hockey, and different outdoor sports in the athletic program.

When completed, the Field House will have one large indoor court 80 by 90 feet, which will be adapted to indoor athletics. This court will be a combination of the space of the present Hangar, plus a large space in the addition being constructed in front.

On either side of the present building a large class room will be added, together with storage rooms, sanitary appliances, etc.

'Missing' School Lands Probed In Shelby County

Scope of the "missing" school land investigation, which has been underway several months in Jefferson and Walker Counties, has been broadened by state authorities to include Shelby County, it was learned today.

The probe is being made by Assistant State Examiner Robert E. White, who, under direction of State Comptroller Charlie W. Lee, has been investigating reported timber cutting, coal mining and other trespassing on state school lands in Jefferson and Walker, it was reported.

At the same time it was learned White was probing reported timber cutting and coal mining on school lands in Shelby, a check revealed that five other assistant state examiners were busy at the courthouse in Columbiana, Shelby County seat, auditing books and records of the Board of Revenue, tax assessor, collector and Circuit Court clerk.

It was learned from Montgomery that White was sent to Columbiana several days ago to check the County Board of Education, but it was reported reliably that he also was making an investigation of coal mining and timber cutting on school lands originally granted the state by the federal government in that county.

Efforts to reach White at Columbiana were futile, but he repeatedly has refused to divulge any information regarding his investigations in Jefferson and Walker Counties, referring reporters to the office of Comptroller Lee, where his written audit reports have been submitted.

White has collected several hundred dollars in rents on school lands for the state in Jefferson County and has obtained other information expected to lead to court proceedings to recover damages caused on the property.

Criminal action also may be taken against trespassers on school lands, state statutes providing minimum penalty of $25 for each tree cut and severe penalties for mining coal and committing other trespasses on school lands.

Assistant Examiners John Sanders, of Dothan, and Sam Bowers, of Troy, are checking Board of Revenue records in Shelby, while Examiner Harvey Glasgow, of Birmingham, is auditing offices of tax collector and assessor. Examiners Marvin Taylor, of Birmingham, and Jack Wright, of Sylacauga, are checking records of the circuit clerk's office.—Birmingham News.

TRAB HARTLEY PITCHED THREE-HIT BASEBALL GAME

From the sports page of the Cordele (Ga.) Dispatch of Monday, August 1, we get the following very complimentary story of a baseball game pitched by Travis Hartley:

"The Cordele Reds won their game Saturday night from the Americus Cardinals by the score of 5 to 2.

"Travis Hartley worked the game for the Reds, turning in the best performance of the season, in holding the Cards to three hits and no earned runs. The young right hander was seldom in trouble as the Cards went after his slants. He struck out four batters and walked three."

Students Will Occupy Three Campus Houses

With the opening of the session this fall Alabama College will have two more home buildings available for student co-operative residences. Work is now under way remodeling and adding to the LeBaron place for this purpose. The Sharp place will be the next on the program.

This will place residence students not only in the McCoy House, but also in the LeBaron House and the Sharp House. In the three a total of about forty students will be housed. They will have all conveniences for economical, comfortable and pleasant living in each house.

In addition to improving the buildings and adapting them to the residence of students, Mr. Jones-Williams is carefully landscaping the adjacent grounds. When finished they will present a beautiful appearance in keeping with the grounds of Alabama College, of which they are a part. The property occupied by the three houses belongs to Alabama College.

Henceforth the Vine Street approach to the College campus entrance will be attractive, beautifully landscaped and neatly kept, all the way from Main Street, an improvement which has been very much desired for a long time.

Memorial Resolutions For Dr. E. G. Givhan

At the August meeting of the Shelby County Medical Society the following resolutions were read by Dr. Chas. T. Acker:

Edgar Gilmore Givhan was born and reared at Jemison, Chilton County, Alabama. He was an alumnus of Howard College, class of 1891, and was graduated in medicine at Mobile Medical College in 1894. Securing his license before the St. Clair County examining board the same year, he located in Montevallo for his life's work.

Dr. Givhan was the first college physician for Alabama College, and was soon a recognized leader in the social, civic and religious and educational activities of our town. The son of a physician, he was reared in an atmosphere which gave him an understanding sympathy for the duties and responsibilities of his profession. His active and energetic interest in the work of his county and state medical association was recognized and appreciated by his brother physicians. He was accorded every honor within the gift of his county society, and at his death had been a member of the College of Councilors of the Medical Association of the State of Alabama for more than 20 years.

His stand for organized medicine and high ethical principles was outspoken and uncompromising. He remained a member of the Board of Censors, the governing body of the county organization up to the day of his passing.

Recognizing that in the death of Dr. Givhan organized medicine in the county and the state has lost one of its most loyal and devoted

Farm Loans Will Be Available To Shelby Tenants

Columbiana, Ala., August 8, 1938—Farm tenants, share croppers, laborers and other families who live in this county and who can qualify under the provisions of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, may make application for federal loans to finance purchase of family-sized farms this year, said J. F. Wyatt, County FSA Rehabilitation Supervisor.

This county was designated to have the tenant purchase loan program included in the FSA Rural Rehabilitation program.

Families in this county who wish federal aid to purchase a good farm may visit the local FSA Rehabilitation Office in the old courthouse building in Columbiana. Information and application blanks may also be secured from the County Agent in the same building. Applications forms and information may be secured from the vocational agricultural teachers at Vincent and Columbiana, or from L. J. Embry, Calcas, Ala.; Orin Pearson, Shelby, Ala.; and E. C. Burton, Calera, Ala., who are County FSA Advisory Committee. The application period will be open for a short time only, so all who are interested are advised to act without delay. Applications made in this county are submitted for examination of the local FSA Advisory Committee, composed of residents of this county. Approved loans will be certified by this committee within the limits of the funds available for the present fiscal year's program.

Land must be bought at reasonable prices and must be capable of affording an abundant living for the family and margin of profit necessary to meet loan payments.

FSA will not list land for sale said J. F. Wyatt. Options may be taken for lands only after the application period is over. The FSA will recognize no obligation to buy until after appraisal of land and official approval of the purchase proposition. Farm and home plans will be made out for each farm considering the available family labor and the production possibilities of the farm to be bought. No loan will be approved in this program where the farm and home does not reveal sufficient probable income to justify adequate farm buildings. All services of the Rural Rehabilitation program will be made available to farm families who acquire lands in this program.

Farmers Will Make Trip To Alexandria

A meeting is planned at the Alexandria Fields for Thursday, August 18th, to study and observe the following:

1. Lespedeza Sericea as a hay crop.
2. Cropping system-rotations.
3. Kudzu production.
4. Forestry.
5. Pastures.
6. Fertilizer Formula Work.
7. Alfalfa as a hay crop.

Many farmers in Shelby County are interested in all of the above, and since such outstanding work is being done along these lines at the Alexandria Fields, I hope a large number of farmers will make up parties in their communities and go by car or bus; let me know at once if you plan to go. By leaving Columbiana at 6 o'clock we can be at Alexandria by 8 o'clock, ready to join the party; I would suggest that you take a lunch with you, as we will not have much time to eat.

Hoping that we may have a party of at least 100 farmers from Shelby County to make this very interesting trip, I am very truly yours,—A. A. Lauderdale, County Agent.

"And They Sang A Hymn And Went Out"

With a short address on this subject by Judge Leon McCord, the Big Brothers Bible Class of Montgomery disbanded last Sunday.

At the closing service 1,000 persons attended, bringing to an end 20 years of continuous Christian effort of the class. But this will not be the end of its usefulness. In his address, "And they sang a hymn and went out," Judge McCord urged the members to go out and carry the high ideals of the class wherever they might go.

Every person who has ever heard an address by Judge McCord has thereby gained something of great value to carry to the end of the way. There are many thousands who have heard him.

Regrettable it is that the Big Brothers Bible Class should choose to discontinue its organized activities, and also it is a tribute to the unmatched leadership of the philosopher from Sand Mountain. There is no one else who can take his place, and therefore, it remains only to acknowledge the fact.

Judge McCord has done more good than he can ever be paid for in this world. The richness of his everlasting treasure is laid up for him in heaven.

We All Hope To See Calera Highway Completed

There is what seems to The Reporter an unreasonable delay in completing the highway from Calera to Columbiana. That part of the road that has been worked is so fine that it makes one impatient to see the whole road made so good.

The delay is being caused, it is said, by the failure of the highway authorities to decide what is to be done about the two railroad crossings between Columbiana and Calera. At one time it was planned, according to reports to build two overhead crossings at these two places. Another plan was to make a new road entirely and avoid the crossings. Of these two plans the better would be to build the overhead crossings. To make a new road would be a costly project and it would be a long time before that part of the road could be paved. But there is another reason why that plan is more objectionable. Mr. Irby has come into our county and bought the Shelby Springs property. He has plans, so it is said, for extensive improvements in the property. Mr. Irby much prefers that the road be left on the present right of way, for to change it and go through his grounds would interfere seriously with his plans for developing Shelby Springs. He would doubtless ask, and he would have a right to ask, heavy damages which the county need not have to pay.

But the highway department has already answered, it seems to us, by its actions, every question about what to do with that stretch of road. In Calera the road crosses the L. & N. and there are ten times as many trains on this road as will ever be on the Southern. Just beyond Columbiana toward Wilsonville is the Cates crossing, which is more dangerous than either of the two between Columbiana and Calera. So far we have not heard of any plan to change the road at either the Calera or the Cates crossing. So if the pavement can be laid over two crossings, why not lay right on over two more and get the road finished up so the people can begin to enjoy it?—Shelby County Reporter.

There is one issue to be voted upon in the November general election that we think should bring every qualified voter to the polls, if it was the sole question to be voted upon at that time. This is the amendment to the gas and road tax diversion, and will be Amendment No. 1 on November 8. It is only fair that taxes collected by this department should go solely to the upkeep of the public roads of Alabama, and the building of more roads.—Chilton County News.

In a short while Vine Street will have a different appearance as you approach the campus entrance. Everybody will be glad to see the improvement.

Economic Highlights

From INDUSTRIAL NEWS REVIEW

More talk is going the rounds concerning the possibility of Mr. Roosevelt running for a third term. A considerable part of the talk is based upon unfounded rumor—but there is a leavening of hard fact that points to a number of interesting conclusions.

There are various obvious barriers to any president's third-term ambitions. In the first place, the strain of the White House usually is a man-killer—as the fact that we have never had more than two ex-presidents living at one time indicates. However, in the case of Mr. Roosevelt, this is not as important as in the case of his predecessors—no president since his distant cousin Theodore has seemed to thrive so well on the colossal labors that fall upon the Chief Executive.

In the second place, the "no-third-term" tradition is still held by millions of voters. Various polls, such as those conducted periodically by Fortune, show that the majority of the people, including those favorable to the New Deal and the president, are generally opposed to more than eight years of office for any one president.

In the third place—and this is especially true today—a president who is known to be seeking a third term cannot help but meet stiff opposition in his own party ranks. Many senators, governors, government officials and others envisage themselves in the role of national leader. They seek the mantle of greatness. And while they will not, for the most part, openly oppose an incumbent's third-term ambitions, they will usually pull all the strings they can, privately, to make it impossible.

Looking at the other side of the picture, there are valid reasons to indicate that Mr. Roosevelt has an excellent chance to run again for his office—whether he seeks it or is drafted by his party. The New Deal is very largely a personal thing—and the dominant personality is Mr. Roosevelt. He has his satellites and official followers, of course, but none of them loom large enough in the public eye to be a first-rate presidential candidate. All the talk centers around Mr. Roosevelt. He gets the blame and praise for everything the government does. No man in his party stands out, for example, as Hoover did when Coolidge was president. His cabinet seems to contain no one, with the possible exception of Secretary Hull, whose advancing years practically preclude his candidacy, who could be counted upon as a dependable vote-winning standard bearer for the Democratic party.

Governor McNutt has the personality, many believe, and he apparently wants the nomination—but it is also believed Mr. Roosevelt opposes him. There is talk about Postmaster General Farley—but Mr. Farley, so far as is known, has no economic or social philosophy. It is generally thought that he would work as hard for a conservative president as he does for Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Farley's dominant characteristic is loyalty, to whoever is head of the party he belongs to.

Most important of all is this question: Does the president want a third term? He hasn't said yes. Mrs. Perkins recently made headlines when she recounted how she had asked the president the question—and said that he looked thoughtfully out of the window, smiled, and gave no answer. And he hasn't said no. There is a sound reason for this, even if he doesn't seek the nomination. If he declared himself out of it, the party would fairly seeth with efforts of Democrats to put themselves forward. By saying nothing he keeps his party control—and at the same time keeps his underlings on tenterhooks.

It is a reasonable supposition, held by the best-informed commentators, that the president hasn't yet made up his mind. The question of precedent doesn't worry him—as he often says, he has shattered more precedents than any president, and he prides himself on it. And there seems to be no problem of physical capacity—his health and energy always astound White House attaches. Thus, the view is growing that it all depends upon conditions two years from now—that if the time seems ripe, Mr. Roosevelt will run again, and that if it doesn't, he will retire and dictate the choice of his successor for the nomination.

The business outlook continues to improve. As one business magazine puts it, "Prospects of a business revival were never better."

The lift in the stock market has been sustained—which has confounded some of the experts, who at first regarded it as a minor and temporary flurry.

The summer business decline was less severe than many anticipated, and the ground lost by seasonal change is being regained in most lines. Steel operation has made important gains. Electric output is getting closer to last year's record levels. Even carloadings are improving—though the railroad problem gets worse, rather than better.

Raw material prices are stable, with the tendency slightly upward. This means big buying—rising markets always cause buyers to jump in, for fear of higher prices still. All in all, the favorable signs outweigh the unfavorable so far as the near future is concerned.

EXAMINING COUNTY OFFICERS

According to a story which we reprint from The Birmingham News, there is in progress a rather sweeping examination of county officers' records at Columbiana.

This, we assume, is one of the regular routine examinations which are conducted by state examiners periodically in all counties of the state.

Coincident with these examinations we note with interest that "the scope of the missing school land investigation, which has been under way several months in Jefferson and Walker Counties, has been broadened by state authorities to include Shelby County."

This probe, it is revealed, has uncovered instances where timber cutting and coal mining have been carried on upon school lands which were originally granted to the state by the federal government.

The examiner has collected several hundred dollars in rents on school lands for the state in Jefferson County, and has obtained other information expected to lead to court proceedings to recover damages caused to the property.

THE OTHER Editor's Viewpoint

From the Press of the State

How Free Are We?

To what extent are we Americans really governing ourselves? We say we are free. We would resent any questioning of its reality by outsiders—by an Englishman, say, or a German, or an Italian. But to what extent are we actually using the freedom that is ours; to what degree is that freedom being circumscribed by thoughtlessness, indifference and, most of all, perhaps, pressures inimical to free government?

The Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, which only the other day reported that every known method was being used to raise funds to control the senatorial primary in Tennessee, comes through again with the finding that use of public funds for political purposes in Kentucky's Barkley-Chandler senatorial contest is a threat to "the right of the people to a free and unpolluted ballot."

"It is certain," says the committee, "that organized efforts have been made and are being made to control the vote of those on relief work, and that contributions have been sought and obtained from federal employees, in behalf of one of the senatorial candidates." That, of course, refers to Senator Barkley, Democratic majority leader.

But, on the other side, it is declared, "it is equally certain that state officials charged with the distribution of federal funds for old age assistance and for unemployment compensation have been required to contribute from their salaries and of their services in the interest of another candidate for the United States Senate." That refers to Go. Chandler.

Shall we only yawn, or smirk, over such revelations? Shall we say that it is only to be expected—that this sort of thing cannot be prevented? Then shall we regard the indirect intervention of national relief officials in the selection of congressional members with complacency?

And shall we, too, like the peoples of other nations, take up following a leader to such extreme degree that we shall unquestionably accept his recommendations as to officeholders and policies?

Shall we agree that the great powers of the presidency, power given by all the people and meant for the protection of minorities and individuals as well as majorities, may be used, even subtly, in support of particular legislative candidates?

To be sure, all public officials, from president down, inevitably are deeply interested in political races that concern them. But shall sovereign voters heed their admonitions, unexamined, without question? Shall free men submit to pressures that in so many ways can be exerted by the power of office?

Then, shall a great percentage of Americans hold themselves aloof, hopeless, cynical, or indifferent, about the whole business and leave to others a direct participation in public affairs, save where personal interest is directly involved?

And shall great hosts of potentially intelligent voters abstain from all interest in local governmental affairs, leaving them to the "politicians?"

How much freedom would there really be, how much self-government, if the answers to all these questions were to be what they either obviously are or threaten to be?

Genuine democracy and freedom can be maintained only where a great majority of all citizens maintain an intelligent, discriminating and independent participation in their public affairs—where they really understand something of what is going on, make up their minds and jealously guard and zealously maintain these high privileges and responsibilities safe from interference or dictation.

But, it will be said, the people can't keep up with everything and they always retain the final power. But the people can keep up with the main lines of governmental evolution. If they don't, they will not only fail to employ their final power effectively but they

OUT OF The Waste Basket

By THE SWEEPER

There Now

Said Secretary Margenthaler on government and business: "I don't think we can get anywhere fighting each other." Yes, we can. We're there now.—Nashville Banner. So are we, but where is the man wise enough to define the location?

International Logic

Russia is not attacking Japan which is not at war with China.—Birmingham Age-Herald. And der Fuehrer loves the German Jews.

Under the heading, "Dashing Around With Dot" in the Shelby County Democrat, last week, mention was made of typographical errors in newspapers, with particular reference being made to "jooking" having appeared as "joking." The Sweeper would like to call the attention of our esteemed contemporary of The Democrat, to the fact that the word is "juking."

Light Pickin's

A burglar broke into all but one of the houses in one block of a residential street here last week. The house he missed was occupied by a newspaper editor," says a news item from Lancaster, Pa. This burglar was probably a former newspaper editor himself, and knew the pickin's would be light at the editor's house.

We Like Chicken

But, when we attended a family reunion down in Chilton over the week-end, we ate so much chicken—fried, boiled, stewed, baked, fricassee and otherwise, that we will possibly never be the same again. So if you find any shortcomings in The Basket this week, just blame it on too much Chilton County chicken.

Squirt, Squirt, Went the Water

The Sweeper was very much impressed with the fire truck demonstration Monday. The truck being demonstrated was just about the neatest little job of firefighting equipment he has had the pleasure of seeing in operation for many a fire. This column feels that the City Dads of Montevallo could render the citizens of this town no greater service than to provide a piece of fire fighting equipment such as this. Public money expended for such equipment would no doubt pay just about the largest dividends which could be derived from any expenditure. Let's have a fire truck, together with a complete equipment for fire fighting in Montevallo!

will stand in danger of losing it—or part of it.

The people of America, on the whole, probably still do prize their independence and integrity as citizens. They who seek to invade that independence, to traduce that integrity, are likely to find out as much in this year's elections. But even so, there is far too much of complacency and indifference and cynicism about the intelligence and the sanctity of the American ballot.

Democracy can progress only through an increasing regard for the duties and rights of free citizenship. And it would appear that, instead, that regard is decreasing. And, in the face of these indications, the worst of all signs would be for us to remain indifferent—careless—unaware. — Birmingham Age-Herald.

Interest in Walter McConaughy's letter from Japan last week was so great that all extra copies of The Times were quickly taken by his friends who sent them to other friends.

If you have a friend who does not take The Times, remind him of the chance to secure a year's subscription by buying one of the Dollar Day specials from a Montevallo merchant next Saturday.

Democratic primary number three has just been held in Chilton. One or two more and we might find out what became of that absentee ballot box.—Chilton County News.

Don't fail to take advantage of the opportunities of Dollar Day in Montevallo next Saturday. The merchants are offering you the best bargains you ever had a chance at in your life.

IN THE ARMY NOW

Pop Sanford, former printer's devil in The Times shop, has at last accomplished his pet ambition to get in the U. S. Army. He is a member of Company M, 7th Infantry, stationed at Vancouver Barracks, in the State of Washington.

BASEBALL

Montevallo baseball team came very near getting away with a surprise victory over the Clanton-Lay Dam outfit here last Thursday afternoon.

The Clamps came here fresh from their second-place triumph in the Montgomery amateur series. On top of that they had the pitching of Teague, who had turned in a no-hit performance against Irondale Sunday before.

Comer was pitching for Montevallo. He allowed only four hits, while his mates were gathering nine safeties off Teague.

The score was 3 to 1 for Montevallo until the ninth inning. The Clamps took quick advantage of a break and ran their score up to 7 before they could be retired.

It was a good game in which Montevallo put up a fight that was a sharp surprise to the visitors.

Thirteen to Two

Montevallo literally slaughtered the Boothton boys in a game here Saturday afternoon, by a score of 13 to 2. Clark pitched for the locals and he made a nice job of it.

Trouble With Acting Is That Actors Have it too Easy Today, Says Beery

One of the troubles of acting today is the fact that actors have it too easy, in the opinion of Wallace Beery, who comes to the Strand screen Thursday and Friday in his newest picture, "Port of Seven Seas," in which he plays the part of a tough but soft-hearted saloon-keeper.

Beery is probably the best example of a star who climbed to the top the hard way. Although he doesn't want anyone to get the idea that his trail is the correct one to follow.

"Some of the things were swell for me. But others could just as well be forgotten," he declares.

His non-professional jobs ranged from a wiper in a roundhouse to a short story writer. His fame as an elephant trainer still exists. He had no idea at the time that this job would ever help him in his screen career. But one of his greatest hits was in "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," in which he played an animal trainer.

His true dramatic training, as far as technique is concerned, was acquired first by working in the chorus of a New York musical, next by replacing Raymond Hitchcock as the star in "The Yankee Tourist," and third by touring the country with the Henry W. Savage stock company.

He learned another angle of the picture business by acting as manager for Essanay at the "Hollywood of Yesterday," Niles, California. He also served as director.

In those places he learned the technique of acting. He learned about drama by losing three fortunes and then rebuilding them

Nature of Competition Vastly Changed From Former Days

Development of New Products and Raw Materials Added to Price Rivalry

Washington—Are our "giant" corporations holding down living standards by holding up prices, in an effort to make exorbitant profits? Has competition declined so that the production and distribution of goods needed for higher living standards is being hindered?

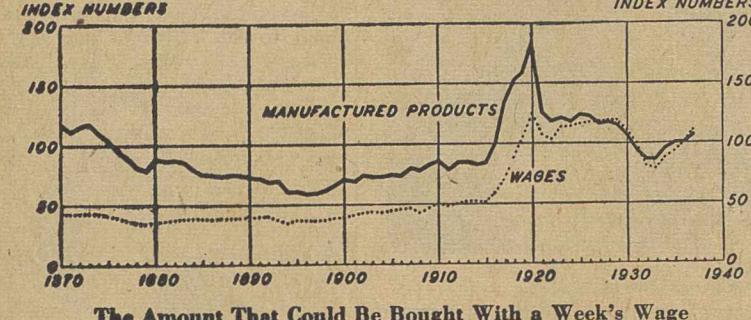

A study which has just been completed at the Brookings Institution found that competition is as real as in former days—perhaps more real. But it operates in a different way.

mies and promote efficiency, the study found. This is in contrast to the aim of combinations of a generation ago, which was chiefly to control markets, suppress competition and raise prices. Some of these older combinations were able to hold up prices for a time, but eventually such attempts broke down or aroused so much resentment that the combinations were dissolved by governmental actions.

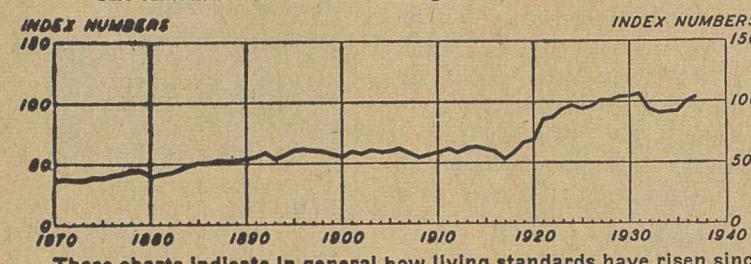

The study did not find that the

Weekly Wages and Wholesale Prices of Manufactured Products

The Amount That Could Be Bought With a Week's Wage

These charts indicate in general how living standards have risen since 1870, during which years there have occurred the greatest development of machine production and the growth of large corporations. The upper chart shows that, although the wholesale prices of manufactured goods were about 8 per cent lower in 1937 than in 1870, the weekly wage had increased more than 150 per cent. The lower chart shows how much a worker could purchase with his weekly wage, assuming that retail prices kept in step with wholesale figures; in 1937 it was nearly three times as much as in 1870. This increase came in spite of the fact that the length of the working week was reduced by approximately one-third during this period.

Manufacturers today compete not only in the pricing of their products, but also in the development of new products and new uses for raw materials. The result may be even more useful to the people as a whole than in the days when the prices of nearly all goods were fixed by direct bargaining in the market.

The making of prices over a large part of industry is vastly changed from what it used to be. The producer estimates in advance a price at which an article can be bought by an expanding number of people and then finds a way to turn out a product within that price.

Almost everyone is aware that this is the way automobile prices are set, and the study found that the three largest concerns in this industry have set the high water mark of competition thus far.

Today, it is almost impossible for so-called monopolies to keep prices unduly high in order to make big profits. Advances in physics, chemistry, and engineering have been so great in recent years that, whenever a corporation tries to do this, some one comes along with a satisfactory substitute at a lower price.

Previous studies made at the Brookings Institution indicated that the best method of passing on to the public the benefits of improved productive efficiency is by giving the consumer lower prices.

Policies of Many Corporations Are Examined

In the latest study, entitled "Industrial Price Policies and Economic Progress," specific inquiries were made into the policies of many manufacturing concerns to find out whether they were aimed in this direction. The study was made by Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, director of economic research, and Dr. Horace B. Drury, a member of the staff. It was financed under a grant by the Maurice and Laura Falk Foundation of Pittsburgh.

Big corporations since the World War have sought to effect econ-percentage of the nation's business done by "giant" corporations has been increasing. Production by such large enterprises comprises about 40 per cent of the total, which is about the same percentage as obtained a generation ago.

Big and Little Companies Work Together

The study shows how big and little companies work together to the advantage of both. Large corporations are generally able to spend more freely to maintain competent technical and management staffs, and these companies have usually been in the front of price reduction.

But smaller concerns also benefit from this large-scale production. With larger concerns purchasing their supplies in large quantities and planning production far in advance, smaller companies which sell them supplies and raw materials are in turn able to plan production on the most economical basis. Many small concerns also find it easier to borrow money from local banks and other sources when they have contracts with large corporations.

Operation of industrial enterprises at their practical capacity is necessary if the nation is to have maximum production of goods, the report of the study says. Forward-looking price policies, constantly aiming toward giving the consumer more for his money, were found to be the most important factor in bringing about capacity operation.

The high level of employment which would come with such capacity operation would have far greater effect in raising living standards than any employment which the government could provide.

Since 1870, while our large corporations have been developing, the amount of manufactured goods which the average worker's weekly wage would buy was multiplied by two and a half. At the same time, the working week was reduced by about one-third.

"I'll Give A Million" Is Gay Hit With Warner Baxter's Starring His Best

Marjorie Weaver, Peter Lorre, Jean Hersholt in 20th Century Fox Film

Orchids, yachts, mansions,—after all, what do they mean?—if it's only orchids, yachts and mansions the girls are after! So a debonair millionaire gives his million the air and goes looking for a girl who is looking only for love!

In this vein, "I'll Give A Million" becomes one of the gayest, most hilarious cinematic romances to come out of Hollywood in an age. This 20th Century-Fox production comes to the Strand Theatre Sunday and Monday.

Romantic Warner Baxter; gorgeously glamorous Marjorie Weaver—at last in glittering raiment; Peter Lorre, the erstwhile menace, Mr. Moto, in a riotously funny characterization; beloved Jean Hersholt in a part as charming as his famous Country Doctor; that master of facial facility, John Carradine; exciting Lynn Bari; Fritz Feld in the best thing he has done since the Pied Piper in Rhienhardt's "The Miracle."

That's just a quick glimpse of the cast which adds up to hundreds—and introduces Shorty, a clever scene-stealing simian. Only the keen mind of smart writers could logically tie up the glamor of high society, and the idea of a whole town in Southern France suddenly inaugurating kindness to tramps—just because Warner Baxter, seeking refuge from fair-weather pals, says he'll give a million francs for a real friend.

Baxter jumps from his palatial yacht to save Peter Lorre from drowning. The vessel sails on and Warner changes clothes with the rescued tramp.

Lorre sallies forth next day with his pockets full of French banknotes—and let's slip the story of the millionaire-hobo. From this point on the solicitude for tramps becomes epidemic. Baxter of course finds his way to a circus where he meets Marjorie Weaver and a hectic romance reaches an astonishing conclusion.

Eleanor Powell wears an ice-blue slipper satin evening gown, molded to the figure. Toe-length in front, the skirt allows for a slight train. Over it, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star wears a midnight blue chiffon evening coat, with double-roll collar to waistline fastening of six tiny buttons. The coat is tailored closely over the shoulders and fitted to the waistline, from which it flares into fullness to sweep the floor in a train much longer than that of the gown.

Rita Johnson wears a one-piece mulberry linen dress, and over it a full-length coat of pink linen with mulberry trim. The coat is collarless, with narrow edging of mulberry running down the opening to hemline and outlining breast pockets, cuffs and wide belt at the normal waistline. Her hat is mulberry felt.

The Farmer's Problems Intelligently Discussed

Farm and Home Week Meeting Is Success

Auburn, Ala.—Hundreds of Alabama farm men and women concluded last Friday their annual meeting here for Alabama Farm and Home Week. The session began Monday, August 1, and ended at noon on August 5.

Highlights of the five-day program were Bankers day on Tuesday, August 2, when Mr. Roland Adams, vice president, Alabama Bankers Association, addressed the meeting; Bankhead Day, Wednesday, August 3, when both Senator John H. Bankhead and Speaker William B. Bankhead spoke; and Agriculture - Industry Night on Thursday, at which Mr. Benjamin Russell, president, Alabama Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. Donald Comer, president, Avondale Mills, gave addresses.

Other outstanding speakers during the session were Gov. Bibb Graves, Edward A. O'Neal, president, American Farm Bureau Federation; Dr. Woodbury Willoughby, Department of State, Washington, D. C.; Congressman George Grant; W. M. Landess, TVA, Knoxville, Tenn.; Jesse B. Hearin, president, Production Credit Corporation, New Orleans, La.; Miss Willie Vie Dowdy, Georgia Extension Service; Miss Loula Dunn, Alabama Commissioner of Public Welfare; P. K. Norris, Foreign Agricultural Service Division, Washington, D. C.; and Walter L. Randolph, assistant director, Southern Region, AAA, Washington, D. C.

Alabama Council of Home Demonstration Clubs held its annual session on Wednesday during the Farm and Home Week. With Mrs. John H. Lee president, presiding, reports of work for the past year and plans for the coming year were made.

Farm men and women spent much time in discussion groups in which a number of subjects of vital interest to both groups were discussed. Discussions followed instruction on the following subjects: development of farm home grounds, mattress-making, livestock on Alabama farms, cropping systems for soil improvement, pasture development, soil conservation, clothing, food preservation, poultry, and a host of other phases of farm living.

Fifty-nine leading young farmers representing as many counties are at Auburn taking part in a four-week course in applied agriculture made possible through the cooperation of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The course will close August 14. Classes are being held in entomology, terracing, forestry, livestock, dairying, fertilization of crops and other agricultural subjects.

The Electric Range

--Helping make fried chicken more famous.

WHETHER it's crusty, crunchy, fried chicken or golden brown roast hen, (with plenty of good hot biscuit—yum, yum!) and fresh garden vegetables, with a luscious dessert to top it off—or just an ordinary meal of cheap meat and potatoes—the electric range does a quick cooking job—and doesn't heat the kitchen so much that even robust women droop on summer days. Electric cookery means a cooler kitchen. And the cost is low—Alabama Power Company rates are 32% less than the national average! Many styles of electric ranges at prices and terms to fit any pocket-book are on display at

Improved Pastures Pay Big Dividends

Auburn, Ala.—Value of improved pasture for growing beef cattle has been clearly demonstrated as the result of a project which has been operating at Grove Hill in Clarke County for three years, states Dr. R. S. Sugg, extension animal husbandman.

The project is a 52-acre pasture demonstration conducted by O. C. Helms, Clarke County agent and C. C. Webb, prominent farmer of Clarke County.

In the fall of 1935, Webb started by planting 40 acres of oats on the 52-acre tract. In the spring of 1936 common lespedeza and Dallis Grass were sown on the oats. They were cut in the late spring and 52 cows and yearlings and a good Hereford bull were grazed from June to October, 1936. Two tons of finely ground native limestone and 450 pounds of triple superphosphate were applied. A mixture of five pounds of black medic, two pounds of white clover, and one pound of hop clover per acre were sown in early November, 1936.

His first crop of calves from the Hereford bull and the 52 head of cows and yearlings was grazed during the spring and summer of 1937.

The spring calves which had been born and raised on this pasture without other feed were sold during the summer and fall for $607. Two year-old cows were also sold off the pasture for $43, making a total of $650 worth of beef, or a cash return of $12.50 per acre. In addition to the cattle sold, 18 heifers were grown out on the same 52 acres and kept as replacements.

Webb reports an excellent stand of lespedeza, Dallis grass, black medic, and white Dutch clover, and if seasons are favorable, expects to get equally good results this year.

Farmers Are Winning Fight On Cholera

Auburn, Ala.—American farmers seem to be making progress so far this year in their fight against the nation's No. 1 swine destroyer, hog cholera.

Reports this week from the ten largest hog-producing states show that in spite of an increased swine population this year, actual losses from cholera are being held to less than they have been in several seasons.

The survey shows the normal number of spring and summer outbreaks in all states but a much closer control of the disease.

More widespread vaccination of hogs against cholera, and greater precautions in isolating outbreaks, are given as two of the main contributing factors in holding down 1938 losses. More pigs have been immunized against cholera this summer than in many seasons past, according to Dr. I. S. McAdory, state veterinarian, and the disease has not had the opportunity to make such headway as it did formerly.

"Much hog cholera is spread at threshing time," says Dr. McAdory, the infection being carried on shoes, wagon wheels, mules' feet, etc. Farmers should be careful about driving wagons through neighbors' hog lots, or coming into contact with neighbors' hogs which might be carrying the virus of the disease. At first signs of a cholera outbreak

USE DERRIS TO CONTROL FLEAS

Auburn, Ala.—Are you bothered by fleas that have been brought into your home by the favorite dog or cat? Most everyone is and wants to find some way to kill the pests that bother both pets and humans.

W. A. Ruffin, entomologist of the Alabama Extension Service, says that derris dust that is used to kill insects in the garden is equally as effective in ridding the canine or the kitty of those pesky fleas that make life during the summer most unpleasant.

For treating cats and small dogs a tablespoonful of derris is sufficient. Rub the powder into the fur around the head and ears first, then along the back and underside of the animal. An application every ten days or two weeks will keep the fleas away. Large dogs require two to three tablespoonsfuls. The druggist has derris for sale.

STATE COTTON ACREAGE REDUCED 19 PERCENT

Auburn, Ala.—Acreage of cotton in cultivation in Alabama on July 1 was estimated to be 2,191,000 acres by the Alabama Cooperative Crop Reporting Service. This is 19 per cent less than the 2,705,000 acres in cultivation July 1 last year and compares with the 10-year (1927-1936) average of 3,014,000 acres. For the United States the acreage on July 1 is estimated by the Crop Reporting Board to be 26,904,000 acres. This is a decrease of 18 per cent from the 34,471,000 acres in cultivation on July 1 last year and is the smallest since 1900.

Call Is Made For Clean Up of Town

Annual Campaign Is Being Made
By Montevallo Study Club
For Neater Town

Another year has passed — and that means another August has come; and with August comes the "weed seeding time" which means it is again time to cut your weeds and clean up your premises.

In Japan, when fall comes, an order is issued that all housewives proceed to clean up. The order is followed by the visit of a policeman who inspects the premises from attic to cellar and back yard to street to see what kind of a job has been done. And if the job is not satisfactory, off to jail the housewife goes. Cleaning time is very simple in Japan.

But in Montevallo we do things differently. In Montevallo this is "Clean-up Month," official endorsement has been given to the observance in a proclamation by the mayor of our town. There will be no subsequent inspections by policemen to see if all trash has been removed. There will be no arrests.

Montevallo's Clean-up Month and Cut-the-Weed Campaign is a voluntary endeavor. Its rewards will not come in any absence of official prosecution. They will come in the consciousness that we have added something to the beauty of our town. They will come in greater healthfulness and sanitation.

In Japan they clean up because they have to. In Montevallo we do it because we want to. And because of that difference we should do a better job.—Mrs. E. P. Hood, Civic Chairman, Montevallo Study Club.

PAVING PROSPECTS

Concerning the paving project for Montevallo, Mrs. E. P. Hood said Wednesday: "Our committee is busy at work on the project. Prospects are greatly encouraging, and we believe we will be able to put it over. We hope to have something more definite to say next week."

KEEPING UP WITH THINGS IN MONTEVALLO

Upon their return to Montevallo from Panama City, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Phillips say they have kept fully informed about doings of the town by reading The Montevallo Times.

Some friends saw Mrs. O. C. Carmichael recently in Birmingham. "I keep up with you folks," she said, "by reading The Montevallo Times every week."

A lady in California wrote a friend here saying: "Even if you don't write me much, I keep up with what's going on in Montevallo, because I see The Times every week."

SUMMER SCHOOL CLOSES NEXT TUESDAY

New and Temporary Additions To College and Training School Faculties Announced

Opening of the 1938-39 school session brings a number of new faculty members to fill temporary and permanent vacancies in the college and training school faculties.

Mr. Irvin T. Sanders, a native of Tennessee, will join the faculty in September as instructor of sociology. Mr. Sanders did his undergraduate work at Washington and Lee and for the past two years has been at Cornell University studying for his doctorate. He has a major in rural social organization and a double minor in education and economics.

Dr. Joyce L. Kellogg will replace Miss Frances K. Lamar as instructor in English. Miss Lamar has a year's leave of absence for graduate study. Dr. Kellogg was an undergraduate in the College of Wooster, Wooster, Ohio, under the instruction of Dr. Howard P. Lowery, general editor of the Oxford University Press. She received her doctor's degree from Yale University last June.

Four new members have been added to the training school faculty. J. B. Varnell, Clanton, will become instructor of junior high school science and playground work for boys. Mr. Varnell is a graduate of Howard College.

Miss Antoinette Beasley comes to the training school from Goldsboro, North Carolina, where she has been teaching for a number of years. She received her A. B. degree from Meredith College, Raleigh, North Carolina, and has done some graduate work at the University of California, the University of Virginia, and Columbia University.

Miss Jeanetta Thomas joins the faculty as assistant instructor of physical education. Miss Thomas received her A. B. degree from University of Alabama and her Master's from Columbia University. For the past few years she has been teaching in Pell City, Ala.

B. degree. She received her Master's degree from L. S. U. and has completed one year's work beyond her Master's. She has recently taught in Hinckley, Ill.

During her year's leave of absence Miss Mary Ambler, assistant librarian, will work toward her Master's degree in library science at the University of Chicago.

LET'S CLEAN UP OUR TOWN!

Montevallo Citizens Invited to Join In "Clean-Up and Cut-the-Weeds" Drive

To The Property Owners of Montevallo:

Believing in the possibilities of this, our home town, and having faith in the interest and in the loyalty of all its people, this communication is directed by courtesy of The Montevallo Times to you to request your cooperation in an effort which, it is believed, will reflect greatly to our credit and which will undoubtedly contribute materially to our collective health and happiness.

We urge that all property holders strive diligently to clean up all privately owned property, residence lots, vacant lots, sidewalks, or other property. In making this request, it is understood that the municipality will cooperate by exercising the same diligence to clean all streets, sidewalks, and other publicly owned property.

In addition to weeds, plants and unnecessary shrubbery, it is urged that all rubbish for which there is no use also be removed. The City will send for and haul away any accumulation resulting from the efforts of citizens in this connection.

It is known that we have in Montevallo a potentially beautiful little town of which we can all justly be proud. If we will all cooperate in this effort as requested, we will undoubtedly enjoy the experience.

LOCAL TEAM IN WINNING SPREE

Addition Made To Sociology Building

Montevallo Club Has Lost Only Two Games Under Direction Of Teck Galloway

Under the management of Teck Galloway the Montevallo baseball team has been going places and doing things for the past month. Only two games have been lost since Skipper Teck Galloway took the helm. The boys have been rallying around their leader with a spirit that has proved a winner.

At the present writing Montevallo team is riding the crest of an eight-game winning streak, having turned down everything that has faced them for two weeks or more. Following is the list of victims: Marvel 5 to 4; Columbiana 5 to 1, Clanton 4 to 3, ten innings; Boothton 13 to 5; Piper 8 to 4; Marvel 12 to 2, Marvel 11 to 7; Columbiana 15 to 1.

The local boys were jubilant over their ten inning victory at Clanton last Wednesday when they returned with the scalp of the famous pitcher, Buddy Teague, securely tucked in their several and collective belts.

Maplesville comes here for another game today (Thursday) and Teck and his boys will put everything they have in the effort to keep their winning streak unbroken. This should be a contest that will bring out every fan around Montevallo. The boys will play a return game at Maplesville next Sunday.

Chelsea Is To Be New Syrup Center

Up-To-Date Mill Being Constructed To Serve All Farmers of Shelby County

Believing that there is a need for more and better syrup in Shelby County, the people of the Chelsea community are constructing an up-to-date syrup-making plant, and will make syrup by the new process developed by specialists of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils of the United States Department of Agriculture, advises M. D. Harman, specialist in syrup and syrup crops, Alabama Extension Service.

This mill will be power driven, and the equipment, such as vats, tanks, etc., will be of copper. Both sugar cane syrup and "sorghum molasses" will be made and it is thought that the mill will be large enough to handle the cane of all the farmers in the county.

This new method of making syrup has proved successful, profitable and popular with all farmers that have tried it. It is popular because of the improved quality, taste, and better keeping qualities of the syrup. It also contains less dregs and does not "go to sugar" like syrup made the old way.

In the new process the cane is milled as usual; then the juice is carefully strained, settled, and evaporated to a half-tone density (called semi-syrup), a hydrometer being used to determine the density. The sugar cane semi-syrup is treated for about 12 hours with invertase, an extract of yeast, and the sorghum is treated with maltose, and extract of malt, then it is evaporated to a finished syrup, a hydrometer again being used to determine when ready. The syrup is then canned at the proper temperature of about 190 degrees F.

The United States produces about 15 million gallons of "sorghum molasses" and about 20 million gallons of sugar cane syrup annually, says Mr. Harman, and with the new process becoming widely adopted this figure should show a good increase within the next year or two.

For any information or particulars concerning the Chelsea Mill, write A. C. Adams, Sterrett, Rt. 1.

Chilton Woman Victim Of Attack Murderer

Clanton, Ala., Aug. 16—The army of a white man in connection with the swamp slaying of Mrs. Pearl Scott, 54-year-old matron, was predicted by Sheriff J. R. Hardy.

Mrs. Scott's body was found in the swamps several hundred yards away from her home in the western part of Chilton County near Randolph Monday. Her jugular vein had been cut and there were two stab wounds near her collarbone. She had been criminally attacked, according to Sheriff Hardy.

The suspect that Sheriff Hardy is looking for lives in the community near Mrs. Scott. He has been missing since the slaying, the sheriff said.

Mrs. Scott left the house yesterday morning to pick some vegetables from her garden. Her children missed her at noon and began looking for her. They discovered her body at 4 p.m.

In the garden 25 yards from the place in the swamp where her body was discovered Mrs. Scott's pail of vegetables was found. Indications were that her assailant came upon her in the garden and dragged her into the swamp after a fierce struggle.

She had numerous bruises about the face and neck as well as the several stab wounds.

Mrs. Scott is survived by three sons and a daughter.

Some Proposed Improvements

From the current issue of The Alabamian, student newspaper of Alabama College, we read with interest what is said about improvements in progress and proposed at the College.

It is stated that the administration has made application for funds with which to remodel Reynolds Hall, and to build a new dormitory, an academic building, and a new reading room for the library.

Further conveniences are proposed, it is said, in a tentative WPA project plan. They include a brick walk around the right of the swimming pool to the Field House; a brick drive between the power house and the pottery to the front of the Field House; a semi-circular walk from the new west drive to the front of Reynolds Hall; a walk from Palmer Hall through the grove to King House; and from Bloch Hall through the grove to the practice home; and the brick-ing-in of inside drives and courts around Main Dormitory.

Man's Best Friend — His Dog

The best friend a man has in this world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter that he has reared with loving care may prove ungrateful. Those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and our good name, may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has he may lose; it flies away from him, perhaps when he needs it most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill considered action. The people who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stone of malice when failure settles its cloud upon our heads. The one absolutely unselfish friend that man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog. Gentlemen of the jury, a man's dog stands by him in prosperity and poverty, in health and in sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground, where the wintry winds blow and the snow drives fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer; he will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounter with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces he is as constant in his love as the sun in its journey through the heavens. If fortune drives his master forth as outcast in the world, friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying him to guard against danger, to fight against his enemies, and when the last scene of all comes, and death takes the master in its embrace and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by his graveside will the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even to death.

Letters To The Editor

STUDY CLUB PROMOTING "CLEAN-UP AND CUT-THE-WEEDS" CAMPAIGN

Editor, Montevallo Times:

As you know, the Montevallo Study Club sponsors a "Clean-Up and Cut-the-Weeds" campaign every year in August. Weeds that are left uncut the month of August will not only seed where they are but for blocks around. It will lessen our work from year to year if we will keep cutting weeds every August.

Last year we asked you to print a communication to the people of Montevallo from the mayor of our town, Dr. Acker, the president of our College, Dr. Harman; and the presidents of our civic clubs, Mr. J. R. Lewis, Mrs. Stanley Mahan, and Mrs. E. H. Wills. We are asking that you reprint this communication.

In less than three weeks now, about 900 college girls will return to our town. Many parents will bring these girls here. Let's clean up our town and show these people from other parts of the state that Montevallo has civic pride.

Thanking you for your cooperation,
Montevallo Study Club.

DOES HE NEED ADVICE OR SYMPATHY?

Editor of The Times:

I bought me a new inner spring mattress the other day and I am having lots of trouble with it. I can't get used to the thing to save my life, looks like.

The first time I tried to sleep on it was about like the first time I tried to ride Paw's young mule colt when I was a boy on the farm. I got off on the floor (it didn't throw me) and managed to get a few hours sleep just in order not to make a complete failure of the whole night.

Next night it seemed just as bad and I nearly gave up the ghost—but I got mad and decided I would not let the thing outdo me. So I stuck to it all night and managed to keep it from throwing me—but no sleep at all.

My new mattress — according to the catalog—has somewhere about nine hundred springs in it. When I was so disgusted with the thing I went back and read the description, and thought it might tell me some instructions how to get along with it.

Then when I saw nine hundred springs, I got right smart and says to the missus, I know what's the matter. It ain't got enough in it. I knew I had the problem figured out then. So I go out that evening and begin to gather up some more hardware to put in it. Rough as it had been with me, I naturally figured it would take something with stickability to stay in it. I got up a lot of old rusty plow points, scratcher teeth, wing sweeps, curvy combs, heel bolts, swing trees — a lot of them — just every old thing like that I could find lying around.

I ripped her open and packed them in. Now I says, I bet you got enough in you to keep you from doing tricks with me tonight. I rested purty good that night, but still it was not exactly perfect for comfortable sleep, the kind I like.

I think I can find enough to fix it, because I believe I am on the right track to get the difficulty solved. I am determined to make that mattress sleep right if I have to cover it with boiler plate and pack into it every old car piece I can find around Cooper Shaw's garage. I will not let it outdo me, I tell you, and I mean it, even if I have to sleep on my stummock. Yours for comfort in sleep.—A Subscriber.

"Home is the place my father is proud to support, my mother is glad to keep and my friends are happy to visit," stated Miss Willie Vie Dowdy, extension agronomist, Georgia Agricultural Extension Service, at the annual Farm and Home Week in Auburn.

Economic Highlights

From INDUSTRIAL NEWS REVIEW

The federal government, says the United States News, is today the nation's largest single owner of homes and farms.

This is one of the fruits of the federal building and lending program. It all began in 1933. At that time, depression was at its peak, and private mortgage holders were foreclosing on properties by the thousands, because the mortgagors could no longer make their payments. The government then came forward with its credit, and took over the mortgages, giving the holders bonds in their place. In most cases, the principal was scaled down before the deal was made.

This work was done principally by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, which made loans to the extent of nearly $3,000,000. Afterwards, about $2,000,000 in loans on a similar basis were made by the Federal Credit Administration.

The government made it clear that in no instance were mortgagors to regard the loans as gifts, or as obligations which could be paid at some vague future time. Interest rates were reduced to 5 per cent and the length of time in which payment could be made lengthened — usually to 15 years, on a monthly installment basis. In 1936, largely because of the series of great droughts which seriously impaired the incomes of Widdle Western farmers, the interest rate was reduced to 3½ per cent by act of congress. At the same time, congress made provision whereby borrowers, if necessary, could defer the time when they must start reducing their principal obligation.

To a large part of the borrowers, these remedies proved sufficient, and they have been able to make their installments as specified. But to another large part, even the easier terms were not enough. It is this fact which has put the government into the farm and home business on an unprecedented scale. And the situation has been growing worse, not better.

Between 1933 and 1936, inclusive, the government foreclosed on 60,186 properties, whose original loan value was $200,000,000. By the end of 1937, the number of foreclosures reached 124,803, with an additional loan value of $490,000,000. And by July, 1938, inclusive, the total was 160,083 foreclosures, with an original loan value in excess of $657,000,000.

Thousands of other farm and home-owners are also behind in their loans, and are in danger of foreclosure.

On the credit side of the ledger is the fact that three-quarters of the borrowers have managed to meet their contracts — and every one of them was in distress at the time the government loans were made. Also to be credited is the fact that the HOLC has never experienced a deficit, and has actually earned a modest profit.

There is the lending picture as it exists today. There is a strong congressional drive in prospect for further reducing interest rates and perhaps extending the time of payment, especially on urban homes, which in the past have been less favored than farm properties. The HOLC, whose officials are apparently trying to keep their bureau operating on a business basis, oppose this, and insist that it would cause operating deficits, and would not materially lower the rate of foreclosure.

Which point of view will win, remains to be seen. In the meantime, the government has 160,000 home and farm properties on its hands — which makes it the biggest real estate dealer in American history.

BRAVO, MONTEVALLO!

Montevallo has two new dreams, one, new fire equipment, the other, a paving project. Both are now on the way to realization.

During the summer, local firemen led by Chief Stanley Mahan took part in a demonstration using the latest methods of fire-fighting. That was the second upward step, the first being the realization of the need. Relying on former casualties for conclusive evidence of need, any citizen of Montevallo can remember fires which could have been stopped at the first blaze if adequate facilities had been provided.

Those days will be gone forever if Montevallo citizens do forget their complacency and provide new equipment for fire-fighting. It is better not to wait 'til the next big fire to hunt a water bucket.

The Study Club is sponsoring the paving project. All it needs is interest coupled with a few active backbones for support. The thinkers find the city's needs and the doers find the way. Progress will be Montevallo's middle name if these projects go through.—The Alabamian.

All of which may go to prove that dreams can be made to come true, if the dreamer is sufficiently persistent in his desire and effort to realize the culmination of the dream.

KNOW-IT-ALLS

Every town has a fellow who knows just how the state, county and federal governments should be run. He knows just where Henry Ford makes his mistakes and what should be done to do away with war in the world. He knows all about the Bible and how the other fellow should conduct his life in order to be successful. The only remarkable thing about him is that with all his knowledge, he has never been able to make a living for himself and family.—Moulton Advertiser.

And still some of these Know-it-Alls might prove to have just the remedy needed for the particular ills they are prescribing for, but unfortunately, this class of people are never given an opportunity to put their ideas into practice.

If you can remember when men wore stiff-bosomed shirts that opened in the back, you are an old timer.—Greensboro Watchman.

And so also is the person who can remember the stays that made corsets hold their own.—Montgomery Advertiser.

And if you can even remember a corset, short skirts won't bother you.

A merchant who runs his business without advertising never knows what he might do if he adopted modern advertising methods.—Chambers County News.

Some merchants are either too bull-headed or self-satisfied to care anything about what they are missing, and some of them wouldn't believe it if they were shown the results of modern methods.

Some people who have no time to think, take plenty of time to talk.—Troy Messenger.

And after talking incessantly for hours haven't said a word worth the consideration of a well informed man.

For a man who does not know when he is licked we submit a Spanish loyalist.—Talladega Daily Home.

And we submit the perennial candidate who invariably is among the also-rans.

"Crime School" Is Smashing Drama

That is the significant question posed — and answered — by "Crime School," the Warner Bros. picture which comes to the Strand next Thursday and Friday with a brilliant cast headed by that effective aggregation of youthful actors who became famous as the "Dead End" boys, Humphrey Bogart and a talented newcomer to the screen named Gale Page.

The title, "Crime School," is in itself sufficient indication of the point of view of Crane Wilbur who wrote the original story upon which the screen play, prepared by Wilbur in collaboration with Vincent Sherman, was based.

Frankly aligning itself on the side of the modern methods of dealing with juvenile delinquency, which are designed to avert the formerly inevitable progression of "bad boy" to "bad man," the motion picture gives a thorough expose of the evils of the old reformatory system—still in vogue in some unprogressive communities.

It follows the fates of six boys, all typical products of the New York slums, after they have been "sent up" for petty crimes, and shows by how narrow a margin they are saved from becoming real graduate criminals.

Their rescue from this once common fate is shown to be the result of the practical application of the theories of an idealistic young commissioner of correction, played by Humphrey Bogart, who has so often been a heartless villain in motion pictures that he is bound to surprise theatre-goers with the fine and sympathetic portrayal he achieves in the first hero role he has ever given.

Both melodrama and comedy mark the vigorous and aggressive fight made by the young commissioner to get a fair chance for the operation of his theories, a fight in which he has to combat not only the belief of other officials in the old heartless and brutal methods but also stupid maladministration and downright political crookedness.

Spurring him on in the battle is not only his idealism but his romantic interest in the sister of one of the boys. This is the part played by Miss Page, and it gives this beautiful recruit from the radio an excellent opportunity to display the glowing personality and gift for vital, intense acting which cause studio executives to believe that she will develop into one of their greatest stars.

The six "Dead End" boys—Billy Halop, Bobby Jordan, Huntz Hall, Leo Gorcey, Bernard Punsley and Gabriel Dell—prove that the success they won in their first screen appearance was no accident, for again their acting is so true that the spectator is utterly convinced that they are the boys they seem to be.

The slums from which the boys in the story are taken off to reform school are genuine slums, sordid and dirty. The treatment they receive at the school is the same they would receive in any number of such institutions throughout the country. But it is no hopeless picture that "Crime School" presents. The newer, more modern methods of dealing with wayward boys are shown, too, methods calculated to send the boys out into the world equipped for honest and useful lives.

The Farmer's Problems Intelligently Discussed

Legumes Save And Build Farm Lands

Auburn, Ala. — The planting of winter legume crops will protect the land against erosion during the late fall, winter, and spring—a period of heavy rainfall—and increase the yield of the crops that follow, points out S. R. Doughty, soil conservationist of the Alabama Extension Service. Much progress has been made in Alabama with winter cover crops and most farmers agree that it is a good farming practice.

Mr. Doughty says many people have wondered why a larger acreage of these soil-conserving crops are not planted in Alabama. Agronomists say that the cost of the seed is the major factor. Farmers with small incomes have been unable to purchase sufficient seed to protect enough of their land with these crops.

In many counties over Alabama this difficulty is being overcome on many farms. By planting small seed patches, saving the seed and increasing the area devoted to legume cover crops from year to year,

FOUR COUNTIES FORM REA CORPORATION

Plans to build rural electrification systems in Montgomery, Macon, Bullock and Lee Counties were revealed Friday in incorporation papers filed with Secretary of State Howell Turner by the Dixie Electric Membership corporation. Headquarters of the co-operative, formed under the state rural electrification act of 1935, will be maintained in Montgomery. The papers listed incorporators as S. F. Adams, Bullock County; B. B. Spratling and Webb Hurst, Macon County, and J. L. Jones, A. C. Hartley and Knox McLaney, Montgomery County.

the farmers soon get a sufficient acreage of legume cover crops established with only a small initial outlay for seed.

The 1938 farm program makes it possible for a farmer who might otherwise be unable to do so, to adopt and carry out a cover crop program. Mr. Doughty advises farmers to contact their county agents

But It's True -----!

Coyotes have been moving into eastern states in increasing numbers for many years. There are said to be many hundred in New Jersey today, some of them within seven miles of Manhattan.

Spencer asked in his will that he be buried in golf clothing, and with all necessary golf equipment. He was buried with clubs and even tees, but two days later the executors remembered that they had not put a ball in the casket. On January 4, 1923, the body was disinterred, the ball was put in his hand.

Records found in Glenmoral castle, Glasgow, show that someone—almost 300 years ago—accurately predicted, in order, the names of successors to the British throne right up to George V. The person did not list dates.

4-H Club Members and Future Farmers Will Conduct Beetle Survey in August

Auburn, Ala. — A final effort to ascertain if the white fringed beetle is to be found in any other sections of Alabama is the order of business for 4-H Club and FFA members during the remainder of August, F. E. Guyton, state director of the beetle survey, announced here today.

Discussing the survey which has resulted in the finding of three new areas, Mr. Guyton said that county and assistant agents and vocational agricultural teachers have requested their club and FFA members to bring in every kind of insect they can find during August.

The adult beetle does most of its feeding and egg laying during July and August and leaders in the fight against the pest believe that if any other infested areas are discovered this year it will have to be during August when the beetles are easily found.

Mr. Guyton pointed out that the finding of the new area in Monroe County, an area that extends for 25 miles along the railroad befor further information on how they can get started on a cover crop program by using the soil-building allowance which has been established for the farm.

Good Cotton Depends on Farmer and Ginner

Auburn, Ala. — The farmer and the ginner both share in the responsibility of carefully handling cotton for improved quality that will be more attractive to both domestic and foreign buyers, believe J. C. Lowery, agronomist, and J. B. Wilson, agricultural engineer, of the Alabama Extension Service.

Picking the cotton clean and dry and preventing the mixing of improved varieties with other varieties is the first responsibility of the grower, the specialists emphasize. The grower who picks and hauls wet cotton to the gin and expects it to come out in first-class condition is only losing money for himself.

If the cotton has to be picked wet, it should be spread out to dry or piled loosely in sheds to dry out for several days before it is taken to the gin.

When cotton reaches the gin it is the responsibility of the ginner to see that the best quality lint possible comes from the ginning of the farmer's cotton. Machinery in good condition, and drying and cleaning equipment will aid him in doing this, according to the extension advisers.

The improved cleaning and drying machinery is the result of several years of study by the United States Department of Agriculture. It has been demonstrated that drying enhances the bale value of short staple cotton by about 70 cents, and up to $2.50 a bale for long staple.

Modern equipment will provide higher grade lint from either damp or moderately trashy cotton, but no machinery is available which can dry extremely wet cotton or remove enough of the foreign matter to give lint equal quality to that ginned from dry, clean-picked cotton.

FASHION NEWS

For Jeanette MacDonald in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Sweethearts," Adrian designed a beach outfit of jersey. The one-piece bathing suit is zebra-striped in wide bands of pale, medium and dark blue. Over it, Miss MacDonald wears a knee-length, sand-colored jersey beach coat, lined with jersey matching the bathing suit. The outside of the coat is embroidered in very fine sea-green wool, in a fern pattern, a note repeated on the huge-brimmed sand-colored beach hat, with brim underside of blue jersey matching the bathing suit. The high peaked crown is of spiraled rope.

Miliza Korjus designs her own clothes, fashioning each outfit to be worn in at least two different ways. The operatic star wears an ice-blue satin dinner dress, with slit neckline, molded to the figure with a slight skirt flare. With it she wears a cape of matching material which fastens with a small flat bow at the neckline. To change the gown, Miss Korjus fastens the cape around the normal waistline, the shoulder band becoming a belt with front bow fastening, the cape itself forming a rippling overskirt.

Myrna Loy wears a slack suit of white shantung, with interest centered in a new treatment of the blouse, which is worn outside and pulled tight around the waistline with a narrow drawstring of the same material which ties in a front bow. The blouse has patch breast pockets, roll collar, and buttons down the front with big mother-of-pearl buttons.

Shirley Temple in "Little Miss Broadway"

Shirley Temple always turns in a fine performance — as millions of fans will attest—but this time she gives you the time of your life!

She's a Shirley of surprises simply surrounded by singing, dancing, romancing, fun making show people. And if you're thrillable, "Little Miss Broadway," which comes to the Strand Sunday and Monday is the musical thing to thrill to.

The grand group of troupers which aids and abets Miss Temple is headed by that scintillating stepper, George Murphy; the irrepressible Jimmy Durante; gorgeous blonde Phyllis Brooks and Edna Mae Oliver, the popular, prim and prudish grande dame of filmdom.

To make this the go-happy musical thrill hit of the year, six new Bullock and Spina, melodies radiate from the romance and the hit selectors can choose from "Be Optimistic," "We Should Be Together," "If All the World Were Paper,"

"Swing Me an Old-Fashioned Song,"

"How Can I Thank You," and "Little Miss Broadway," the title song.

It's all about a little miss who lives in a vaudeville hotel with her foster family, Edward Ellis and Phyllis Brooks. When Jimmy Durante's jazz band gets too loud in its rehearsals, the wealthy neighbor, Edna Mae Oliver, complains and threatens to close the hotel. George Murphy, her nephew, intercedes—and while he wins nothing but enmity from his prim aunt, at least he wins the favor of fair Phyllis.

Led by the astonishing, amazing and brilliant Shirley, everything ends as it should—especially after Shirley convinces an austere judge that he should permit the actors to stage their show in the courtroom.

George Barbier, Edward Ellis, Jane Darwell, El Brendel, Donald Meek, Patricia (Honey Chile) Wilder and Claude Gillingwater, Sr., have an active part.

Toy Pistol Gets Negro Boy Caught

Highway Patrolmen Led Merry Chase Before Bicycle Thief Is Apprehended

The short wave radio set in Highway Patrol Car 204 blared, "Car 204, a few miles out on the Montgomery Highway, a Negro boy with a pistol riding a bicycle...."

This was the beginning, Highway Patrolmen Lloyd Tippett and R. L. Chesnutt revealed Friday, of a trip which ended in Montevallo with the arrest of a 14-year-old Negro boy, carrying a toy pistol and riding, police said, a stolen bicycle.

The boy was returned to Birmingham and turned over to Juvenile Court on a charge of grand larceny. Highway Patrolmen Tippett and Chesnutt said the boy's father gave his name as Willie Cunningham, of Montevallo.

Immediately after they received the call last Wednesday the highway patrolmen said they began checking for information at various filling stations and at each one they received the same report. "Sure, he passed by here a few minutes ago."

They checked the boy as far as Alabaster, Ala., Patrolmen Tippett and Chesnutt related, and there they lost the trail. Later they returned to Alabaster and found that the boy had asked directions for getting to Montevallo.

By this time, the patrolmen said they received reports that the rear tire on the bicycle was gone. Wearly Patrolmen Tippett and Chesnutt said they set out for Montevallo to try to apprehend the indefatigable bicyclist. They caught him six miles from Montevallo.

The "pistol," Patrolmen Tippett and Chesnutt said, "looked just like a real one. It resembled a blue steel .32 revolver with a pearl handle."

Confronted by his father, the patrolmen said, Willie broke down and confessed that he had stolen the bicycle in Birmingham. According to Officers Tippett and Chesnutt, Willie's father said:

"Boy, I've disgraced at you."

The bicycle was reported stolen Wednesday by Roy Gagliano, 2405 Twelfth Avenue, North.

Later, the patrolmen said, Willie's mother told them that "I sent Willie to Sunday School and this is the first time I've seen him since." —Bem Price, in Birmingham Age-Herald.

Two of the escapes were caught Tuesday near Birmingham.

Sympathy

A card to The Times from another subscriber says: "Having just bought two inner-spring mattresses, we can thoroughly sympathize with the subscriber who wrote the letter in last week's paper."

The Times press broke down last week. We were repairing it and had parts scattered all over the shop when P. D. Pendleton came in. "If you have any of them pieces left, I want them to put in my inner-spring mattress," he said.

No-Hit Game Pitched By R. J. Comer Sunday

Montevallo baseball team went to Maplesville Sunday for the final game of the season. And what a game it was!

While R. J. Comer was getting a no-hit, no-run performance out of his system, his Montevallo mates secured three tallies off the opposing aggregation (composed of Maplesville, Selma and Clanton players).

Thus the local team under Skipper Teek carried their sensational winning streak right on to the season's end, and the last game was a thrilling climax to a most successful campaign.

Comer has captivated the fans by his demonstration of superb pitching ability in the last few weeks. His no-hit performance Sunday places him in a class where few pitchers ever sit.

The whole Montevallo team has played a fine game this season. They have held their own with the best amateur teams of this section.

Montevallo Buys New Fire Truck

Hose, Ladders, Fire Extinguishers, Lanterns, and Searchlights Included in Equipment

The Town of Montevallo bought a new Pirsch Fire Truck at the meeting of the Council Monday night, August 22. Along with the truck, purchase was also made of 500 feet of Eureka hose and all necessary auxiliary equipment, consisting of the following:

Extension ladder, roof ladder with folding hooks, pike pole, two fire extinguishers, hand lanterns, dash searchlights, rear spotlights, 150 feet of booster hose with nozzle, axe, crow bar, and siren horn.

The cost of the entire job is in round figures, $3,000, in which a trade-in allowance for the old truck is considered.

The new truck is equipped with a 500-gallon booster pump which takes water out of the fire hydrants and has the power to pump it over the highest building in the town.

Also the equipment includes a reserve tank of 100 gallons capacity which can be used in extinguishing small fires without connection to the fire hydrants, or in areas where no hydrants are accessible.

This equipment was bought from the manufacturers, Peter Pirsch & Sons Co., of Kenosha, Wisconsin. It will be ready for delivery to the Town of Montevallo in about sixty days.

It is one of the most modern and efficient fire-fighting devices of the present day and will give Montevallo the fullest measure of protection against destruction of property by fire.

Action of our officials in purchasing this equipment is heartily approved and commended by all citizens of the town.

TOWN WILL SEEK TO DEVELOP STREET PAVING PROJECT

The street paving project which has been the objective of considerable missionary effort on the part of the Montevallo Study Club lately, was presented to the Town Council at its regular meeting Monday night.

The Council voted to secure an engineer to lay out the details of the matter, and to proceed with an effort to get the job instituted as a WPA project.

"There are a lot of crooks and turns to getting a job of this kind under way," said a member of the Council, "but we are going ahead with it and see what we can work out."

It was a commendable piece of community work on the part of the Study Club committee to get the interest of citizens expressed in such forms as to give the Town a starting place toward institution of the project.

Community Meetings

Those who think and plan with deep concern toward public affairs in Montevallo frequently come around to a realization of the great need of a free and full exchange of opinions among our town citizens generally.

It is apparent that we do not know enough about what our neighbor is thinking, hoping, and planning. We do not know enough about mutual problems that concern us individually and have a direct bearing upon public questions.

In consequence of this lack of exchange of opinions, we often hear someone express the wish that Montevallo could have more community meetings in which all citizens could take a part and give expression to their thoughts.

But, it is argued then, we have no community meeting place. That is true, although it should not prevent us from having such meetings. The obvious need of community meetings should move us to have them. Then if we have them and they should prove beneficial as we believe, we would then find some way to provide a suitable place to meet.

Our town officials would welcome an exchange of opinions with the citizens. They face the big problem of administering the business of the community for every citizen. Then, why should the citizen not express himself to the town officials upon questions which concern him and his community?

The Times believes we should start toward community meetings by attending the regular meetings of the Town Council. We believe each and every citizen would be welcomed by the officials. Opinions could be exchanged and helpful discussions carried on. Suppose we try it as a start.

Thanks For The Corn

We can stand in front of The Times office and look down across Mr. Ed Mulkey's fine corn in the creek bottom. During recent weeks we have enjoyed this view many times a day.

Early in the morning the growing stalks sparkle with the freshness of the dew, the sight of which gives one a zest to push forward into a busy day.

At noontime the sun bearing down on the field with a withering heat, makes us think of the days when we labored between tall rows at laying-by time, wishing the dinner bell would call to surcease.

In the evening shadows the blades rustle in the breeze, welcoming the cooling dew that will soon come again.

In the rotation of these daily processes much good corn has come to fruit. It is just now in the "roastin' ear" stage. We have thought of its edibility as we gazed across the field morning, noon and night.

Mr. Mulkey must be a mind reader. Doubtless he has seen us gazing across the field and interpreted our thoughts of fine, juicy, green corn.

Anyway, he brought to the editor's office last Saturday a dozen ears, which, he said, was his contribution to the Sunday dinner. Well, it was better than a contribution. It was very nearly the whole dinner itself. We had only a fried chicken or two to go with the corn, but it goes together mighty fine, as you perhaps already know.

Yaller corn, fixed up in good Southern style, and a yaller legged fryer, with plenty of gravy on the side of the plate (or in the middle, if you prefer) is something to write home about. We can prove it by Postmaster Bob Reid or Dean Napier. (Luther Shaw might be a qualified witness, too.)

Thank you, Mr. Mulkey. We enjoyed eating your corn quite as well as we have enjoyed watching it grow.

Salaries of State Officers

There is brewing a movement to increase the salaries of state officials. The effort will be made in the next legislature. Some even plan to have it done in the first five days of the session so the incoming officials can get the benefit.

Among the reasons mentioned for increase in salaries, we note this one with particular interest: The officers should get more salary because they spend so much to get elected.

By that argument one would assume that it makes no difference whether the official is worth anything to the state or not. And, furthermore, if salaries are to be set according to what a candidate spends to get elected, where do you suppose such an unreasonable plan would end?

Already it is surmised, if not actually known, that the power of money used by candidates for office in Alabama has become a debauching and corrupting influence. Therefore, we regard it then as the last straw to hear a state official offer the argument that "I should have a bigger salary because I have to spend so much money to get elected."

We suggest that the legislature concern itself more with curbing the outlandish expenditure of money in political campaigns, rather than reward and encourage the spenders by giving their campaign funds back to them in the form of salary increases.

Our Baseball Team

The Times is proud of the Montevallo baseball team. They have given us a season of excellent playing.

We do not understand why it is that there is such a lack of enthusiastic support of such a team among our people.

Maybe our folks just happen to be the kind who do not care for the great national pastime. Some of that sort are found everywhere—and of course, if one does not find any entertainment in baseball, that is not to be questioned by us who do.

However, it is remarkable that we have in one small town, such a predominance of people who do not rise to the thrill of a good ball game played by the home boys.

Teck Pulled A Corrigan Stunt

Teck Galloway, manager of Montevallo's ball club, pulled a Corrigan stunt one day last week.

He received a phone call asking him to bring his team for a game. Accepting the invitation on the spot, he quickly gathered up his players and set out on the trip.

Arriving at Bessemer in a few hours the skipper began to inquire about the scheduled game. No information could be had other than the fact that no one in Bessemer had contracted for a ball game.

Completely outdone and in great wonderment, Teck brought his boys back home. When he got here he found that the Vincent team had been calling him all afternoon trying to find out why he did not come to play his engagement.

ARE YOU A HYPOCRITE?

The average motorist is an unconscious hypocrite. That's a strong characterization—but a little impersonal analysis will substantiate it.

How often have you criticized some driver for an offense which you commit periodically yourself? How often have you taken comfort in the thought that accidents are caused by some reckless breed of motorist with whom you have nothing in common, thus dodging the fact that only pure fool's luck has saved you from a crash on a dozen occasions? Have you ever attempted to get a ticket "fixed"—even though you pay lip service to the cause of aggressive, impartial law enforcement?

It is a fact that a large proportion of accidents are caused by the reckless ten per cent, but the other ninety per cent periodically take chances and are responsible for many of our annual auto deaths.

Who, for example, doesn't sometimes pass a car when the stretch of empty road that can be seen is too short for safety? Who doesn't occasionally succumb to the lure of excessive speed—even though he has little or nothing to do when his destination is reached? Who doesn't periodically neglect repairs to brakes, lights or steering mechanisms, on the theory that he will get around to it when more convenient?

We'll go a good way toward reducing accidents when the average driver begins asking himself such questions and returning honest answers. Accident prevention, so far as it concerns the human element, is a personal, individual matter—and each individual has to really want to drive safely at all times before he can analyze his driving errors and correct them.

THE DOOM OF DEMOCRACY

If it is established in the Mexican instance that a Latin American government can arbitrarily confiscate the property of American companies and American investors without paying for it fully and promptly, this will give collectivists in those countries such a powerful weapon that collectivist policies, whether fascist or communistic, will become almost general throughout Latin America. And that will mean economic regression of a kind and to an extent that will affect the prosperity of the entire Western Hemisphere and even of the Old World. Moreover, it will spell the doom of democracy in many countries.—The Texas Weekly.

Economic Highlights

From INDUSTRIAL NEWS REVIEW

For a time it seemed that the Russo-Japanese "incident" on the Siberian-Manchurian border might mark the beginning of the long-feared "second World War." That could have easily happened—as every European observer knows Hitler would be almost certain to invade the Ukraine if the Soviet became engaged in major hostilities on its far Eastern frontier. As a result, the true came as a welcome surprise to a war-frightened world.

Thus, on the face of it, the "incident" was of little significance. All it involved was a territorial dispute, concerning whether Japan or Russia was the rightful owner of a small area of little populated and practically barren land. The Russians claimed the area, using as evidence old Tsarist maps. Japan disputed the accuracy of these maps, and hostilities followed. Culminating military phase of the month-long engagement, which claimed about five thousand lives according to unofficial reports, was a Russian artillery barrage of the Japanese positions which observers characterized as the most severe seen in the world since 1918.

If you go beyond the surface, however, the incident takes on considerably more importance. It demonstrated two things of great significance. First, the U. S. S. R. is ready and willing to fight, when no other solution seems present, and at the same time is eager to conclude its disputes peacefully if it can. Second, it demonstrated the great military and economic weaknesses of the Son of Heaven's little empire.

As one news commentator said, the upshot of the "incident" was a sweeping military and diplomatic defeat for Nippon. It is reliably reported that high Japanese officers reported to their emperor that they lacked the supplies and men for waging even a brief war in the Manchukuo - Siberian territory. The Chinese aggression—which is dragging on month after month, has made a mockery of Japanese expectations of a quick and easy victory—and has drained the empire dry. As a consequence, the Japanese had the humiliating experience of submitting almost in their entirety to Soviet Foreign Commissioner Litvinoff's terms of settlement. The Japanese government—for the time being at least—has accepted the Russian view of the dividing lines. Official Japanese government statements attempt to cover this up—but it is a fact, as reference to our atlas will demonstrate.

What does all this mean, so far as the possibilities of peace and war are concerned? It means that one of Germany's allies, upon whom Hitler must depend if his expansion policies are to bear fruit, has her hands full of trouble now that she is unwilling and unable to take on any more. It means that Russia, with her gigantic military machine and her implacable hatred of the Nazis and Fascists, still holds the balance of power in Europe and Western Asia. It means that at least one of the great anti-Fascist powers is prepared to meet force with more force.

Looking elsewhere, there are other signs to indicate that the designs of the Fascists are far from materializing. A few months ago it seemed that the fall of the Spanish government was imminent. Franco, with his Italian troops and his German planes and munitions, was advancing almost unchecked. Today the government has rallied, has regained lost territory, and is again on the offensive. In spite of incredible horrors, the spirit of the population in government territory seems to have gained rather than lost in vigor. Franco still has the upper hand—but the experts are saying that he cannot possibly win this year, and that if the recently signed pact whereby Mussolini pledged himself to withdraw Italian troops from Spain is observed, his chances of ultimate victory will be immeasurably lessened.

Germany is rattling the saber again at Czechoslovakia—but there has been a notable stiffening of spines in France, which leads to the view that actual German aggression of Czech territory is unlikely, and would be extremely foolhardy.

Summing up, the Fascists and the Nazis are still making the most noise—but they aren't showing results. Big question mark remains England—where the tottering Chamberlain government continues to play both ends against the middle. Recent surveys indicate that England has lost a colossal amount of prestige in this country.

Business news is mostly good. Production figures are indicating that the sustained improvement in the stock market is justified by conditions.

Consumers' goods industries continue to lead the field, but there are signs of betterment in the long-dormant capital goods industries. Even the railroads, which are earning almost nothing, are expected to soon increase their buying.

Steel recently touched 40 per cent of capacity in a period when normally business would have declined. Automobile production is at a higher level than anyone thought possible a few months ago, with still better experience in prospect.

PUBLIC HEALTH PROGRAM

A program of expansion of the state's public health activities, particularly in the fields of venereal disease and tuberculosis control, was outlined in a statement sent by the State Committee of Public Health of the Medical Association of the State of Alabama to the members of the state legislature for the lawmakers' information and guidance in the framing of legislation affecting public health.

After calling attention to the seriousness of the venereal disease and tuberculosis problems in Alabama, and pointing out that approximately one-half of the current appropriation for general health work immediately goes into budgets for local health work in the state's 67 counties, the committee's statement continued:

"A careful study on the Board's part of the present and future needs of the Health Department, if the programs for reasonable and wholesome expansion are to go forward, reveals that the present annual appropriation of $400,000 for general health work should be increased to $500,000 annually during the next quadrennium. In the light of the experiences of the past few years, when the Health Department's appropriations have been drastically reduced because of proration, the Board is strongly of the opinion that the legislature should see to it that the appropriation fixed by it for so basic and necessary an activity as the protection of the public health should be continuing, uninterrupted, not subject to change and payable in full, unless altered by the legislature itself. Knowing to what a large extent Alabama's future material progress hinges upon the physical and moral fitness of its man-power—present and future—the Board urges upon the legislature the importance of strengthening, in all possible ways, this most necessary arm of state government.

Philosophy Of Life

Ever so many years ago, when we were much younger than now, we ran across a little verse, the truth of which was so impressive that it has stuck with us all through the years and which we have strived to make a part of our daily life. We pass it along to our readers for what it may be worth, as you too, travel down the rocky and rugged path of this life:

"Angry words can do no good,
And blows are dealt in blindness;
Words are better understood,
If spoken in kindness."

—Author unknown

A Fine Family

The Father of Success is Work
The Mother of Success is Ambition.
The oldest boy is Common Sense.
Some of the other boys are: Perseverance, Honesty, Thoroughness, Foresight, Enthusiasm, and Cooperation.
The oldest daughter is Character.
Some of the sisters are: Cheerfulness, Loyalty, Courtesy, Care, Economy, Sincerity and Harmony.
The baby is Opportunity.
Get acquainted with the "old man," and you will be able to get along with the rest of the family.

—Selected

Trouble with a lot of people is they want to be close friends to all of the family, without even so much as an introduction to the "old man" under any circumstances.

Ad Lib

A lot of fellows who spout profusely about capital and labor never have had any capital and never performed any labor.—The Florence Herald.

Which reminds us to add that we know lots of fellows who are "keen" political talkers and can tell any candidate how to get elected, still they can't vote.—The Alexander City Outlook.

And what about those fellows who can tell just how a newspaper should be run but are not subscribers to any of the papers they like to criticize?—Roanoke Leader.

To the above aggregation of experts, we would like to add the inveterate bridge and checker "kibitzer" who is invariably beaten in a game by the mere novice, despite the expert advice he is always dishing out to the other fellows at a game.

Better be broad-minded than broad-shouldered, but a little of both makes a good combination for any man.—Sumter County Journal.

How about a little flat-footedness to assure a firm stand for the right to go along with this broad-minded and broad-shouldered business?

A Recipe For A Happy Home

One all-purpose wife, and one husband, just any kind will do, just so he likes to stay out at night; two lots with one house, and plenty of relations hanging around. Also add a touch of Mother-in-Law, to keep the wife from getting self-satisfied, it will also add spice to the home. Mix well and let set for a few days. In mixing do not get too close, or danger may result. Watch for flying sparks! — Lola Barnett, in Aliceville News.

Just to make the thing a little nearer Utopia, let's add a couple or so of youngsters who like to argue over whether they shall tune the radio to Joe Penner or Little Orphan Annie, while Dad wants to listen to Senator Sorghum cure the country of its ills.

Did you ever stop to think that maybe the other fellow's faults you see so plainly are only reflections of your own?—Troy Messenger.

'Tis sad but true, that our faults have a habit of reflecting themselves more vividly upon our neighbor than is the case with our virtues, and we should be more prone to guard against being faulty for this reason.

The world would be a fine place if everybody was as good as they think they are.—Chambers County News.

Yes, even half as good.

Early Printing Problems

Ante the problems which confronted printers some fifty years ago, a New York newspaper man is quoted by The Linotype News on a few problems which he had to solve in the early days of job printing, as follows: "Another man came along with a dapple-gray stallion and wanted the advertising cards printed in dapple gray ink. We were able to get a French percheon electrotype showing dapples that satisfied him. But the man who brought in the tailboard of his wagon to have his name printed on it presented an order I could not fill." All of which reminds us of the time not so many years ago when a barber wanted some business cards printed and wanted to know if we could print a barber pole on the card in stripped ink. Few modern day printers realize what the old-timers were up against with handset pages, inking the forms by hand, and then printing the paper with hand power on the old Washington hand press to say nothing of "kicking off" a few thousand handset bills on the old style Gordon job press.

Paroles are not granted to all who ask for them. After reading the files in 121 cases recently Governor Graves turned down 82 of the applications.

Gala Premiere
Of "Gold Diggers"
At Strand Today

The Strand Theatre will be the scene of a gala premiere tonight when "Gold Diggers in Paris" has its initial Montevallo showing. The latest and most elaborate of the Warner Bros. musicals, which promises a new high in entertainment, brings back to the screen, after a three year's absence, the one and only Rudy Vallee.

That is an event in itself but Rudy thinks the most important feature of the new "Gold Diggers" film is the motion picture debut of Freddie Fisher's Schnickelfritz Band, a sensational crew of mad musicians.

Sharing the romantic and singing spotlight with Rudy is the luscious Rosemary Lane; doing the heavy dramatics is the brilliant Gloria Dickson, and contributing hilarious amusement is a group of star comedians which includes Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins, Mabel Todd, Melville Cooper, Ed Brophy, Curt Bois and Fritz Feld.

And, giving the whole production its avowed reason for having been made, is an aggregation of lovely Gold Diggers, who charm the beholder with their dancing talents in the ensemble numbers devised and staged by Busby Berkeley.

The whole plot revolves about the adventures of a troupe of dancers and of the owner of the night club where they are working at the start of the picture. That is Vallee's role.

Though the girls are of the hotcha school of dancing, they are, as a result of an amusing error perpetrated by Hugh Herbert, taken to Paris to represent America in an international ballet contest. Everything turns out well when the girls go on and give them some real swing.

The Farmer's Problems Intelligently Discussed

Farmers Warned To Combat Leaf Worm

Auburn, Ala.—A warning to North Alabama farmers to be on the close lookout for the cotton leaf worm and be prepared to combat it with calcium arsenate was issued here by W. A. Ruffin, entomology-horticulture specialist of the Alabama Extension Service. His warning also included boll weevils in late cotton.

Already quite prevalent in many of the northern counties, including Lawrence, Blount, Franklin, Morgan, Walker, and Cullman, the leaf worms are just now beginning to pupate and chances are that they will be numerous and will be attacking cotton by the last week of August or first of September, the entomologist said.

While most of the early cotton will not show so much damage from the worm, Mr. Ruffin said late cotton would be seriously handicapped if the worm is allowed to go unmolested with the poison dust gun.

He advised farmers to apply calcium arsenate with a dust gun at the rate of 8 to 10 pounds per acre instead of Paris green or arsenate of lead. However, if some farmers do use the latter poisons, they should use them as a spray instead of dusting to prevent injury to the cotton plants.

The specialist said, after a tour of the upstate counties, he believed the boll weevil menace is more serious than people realize. With the wet weather farmers in this section have had all during the season, and with large cotton stalks, weevils have had every opportunity to increase.

SOMETHING NEW IN DEEP SEA FISHING

Something new in the way of an aid to deep sea fishing will be used this year in the Baldwin County Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, to be held August 23 and 24. Airplanes equipped with smoke bombs will fly over the gulf, and when a large school of fish is sighted a smoke bomb will be dropped. Boatmen, experienced in these waters, will be in charge of the boats, and on sighting the smoke will steer to the "discovered fishing ground."

AAA Administrator Jones Explains Operation Under '39 Farm Program

Auburn, Ala.—Outline of the 1939 Farm Program, a program similar in most respects to that of 1938, has been announced by A. W. Jones, Alabama AAA administrative officer.

Essential points of the new program include:

(1) Establishment of national allotments for soil-depleting crops and a national objective for soil-building crops and practices.

(2) Establishment of individual soil-depleting crop allotments for the following crops: wheat, corn, cotton, rice, potatoes; flue cured Burley, fire cured and dark-air cured, cigar filler and binder, and Georgia-Florida cigar wrapper tobaccos. (The AAA has taken under advisement proposals that the special allotments established in 1938 for peanuts be discontinued and that special provisions be included for commercial vegetable crops.)

(3) A maximum payment to be calculated for each farm participating in the program. Payment will be made for keeping within soil-depleting allotments and for attaining soil-building goals, by the carrying out of practices.

(4) Crop classifications and soil-building practices to those approved in 1938.

(5) The provision that land used for home gardens may be excluded in calculating soil-depleting crops for the farm. This is a new provision suggested as a means of increasing the living standards of many farm families.

(6) The continuation of efforts —and so the largest catch in the history of the rodeo is expected.

Another important and convenient feature of the Baldwin County Deep Sea Rodeo is the choice between deep sea and fresh water fishing. Of course, prizes are to be offered in both classes.

A record catch is predicted at the Baldwin County Rodeo, which is not unusual—in fact, it would be out of the ordinary not to make a record one. Never in the history of the rodeo have the contestants failed to make large catches.

Accommodations are ready, boats are ready, contestants are ready, and the fish are ready—all that is needed is the morning of August 23, when the signal flashes and the annual Baldwin County Rodeo gets away for another two days of glorious fun and fishing.

THE YOUNGEST OF THREE TALENTED DAUGHTERS

Jeanette MacDonald, as early as she was able to think about anything, thought only of being a singer, and, perhaps, a dancer. Today, Miss MacDonald is one of the outstanding musical stars in Hollywood. She is now appearing opposite Nelson Eddy for the fifth time in "Sweethearts."

to restore to grass land unsuited for crops in the Great Plains area.

One of the most important changes from the southern viewpoint is that which provides that, with the exception of Texas and Oklahoma in the Southern Region, general soil-depleting crop allotments will be determined only for those farms on which either feed crops or livestock products are grown for sale. In 1938 general soil-depleting crop allotments were established for farms in the Southern Region but these allotments made allowance for all food and feed crops needed for home use.

THREE VITAMINS URGED FOR SOIL

Auburn, Ala.—J. P. Walton, young Dale County farmer who has just completed a course in applied agriculture here, says he has found the trouble with Alabama soil—it needs vitamins T, R, and CC. The alert ruralist told a group of farmers at a banquet that animals and people may need several vitamins for best health, but that in his estimation farm land needs just three—T, terracing; R, rotation of crops to reduce the fertilizer bills for best land results; and CC, cover and build up land for future crops.

Experiment Shows Value of Legumes

Auburn, Ala.—Results of field tests by the Alabama Experiment Station show that yields of cotton and corn made outstanding gains when these two major crops followed vetch or Austrian winter peas.

Summary of results from tests conducted to determine the value of the two winter cover crops as a means of increasing cotton and corn yields reveal that where cotton and corn followed vetch or Austrian winter peas, turned under, yield of seed cotton was increased by 628 pounds while corn yield climbed 15.6 bushels per acre.

Increase in cotton yield due to planting and turning of vetch or Austrian winter peas was worth $3.78 per acre more than the increase from 225 pounds of nitrate of soda or its equivalent after considering cost of the legume seed and cost of the soda.

Where corn was grown without rotation and was preceded by vetch or Austrian winter peas cost of the increased yield was 16 cents per bushel.

Vetch or Austrian winter peas grown in a two-year rotation (cotton-winter legumes-corn) increased the corn yield 18 bushels per acre at a cost of 14 cents per bushel. In addition to the influence of legumes on the corn crop, the legumes increased the cotton yield by 213 pounds of seed cotton per acre.

Vetch or Austrian winter peas, when not fertilized with a sufficient amount of phosphate, usually failed to make enough growth to economically increase cotton and corn yields; whereas, with a sufficient application of phosphate they made enough growth to greatly increase the yields of subsequent crops.
